Vishinsky Declares Truman Advocates Old Hitler Policy

Warns "Two Parties" Have A-Bomb

LAKE SUCCESS, Oct. 23 (AP)—Russia's Andrei Y. Vishinsky warned today that "two parties," not just the United States, can set off the atomic bomb. He accused President Truman of advocating the old Hitler policy of "guns instead of butter."

The Soviet Foreign Minister assailed Mr. Truman's foreign policy in a two-hour speech before the 60-nation Political Committee of the U. N. Assembly. It came about 24 hours before the President is slated to address the U. N. Assembly. Vishinsky is to be one of the U. N. dignitaries greeting the American Chief Executive.

Calling once more for peace and for absolute prohibition of the atomic bomb, Vishinsky said:

Russia "Not Frightened"

"This weapon is available not only to one party but also to the opposing party. One cannot say, therefore, that its use will depend on the strategic plans of the one who attacks first. There will be two parties who can pull the trigger on this ghastly weapon: We do not know whether the first price will not be paid by an innocent party having no weapons, atomic or otherwise, at its disposal."

Vishkinsky said a get tough policy will not frighten the Soviet Union and added:

"They indulge in sabre rattling. They used the atom bomb for years but they failed. Now, of course, they are toting the hydrogen bomb around but I assure them they will fail as they failed before."

Vishinsky, growing red faced and sarcastic, said Mr. Truman's San Francisco speech confirmed that the British-American bloc policy is based on "the cult of force and the cult of the atom bomb."

U. S. Delegate Lodge Replies

Sen. Henry Cabot Lodge, Jr., U. S. delegate and a Massachusetts Republican who has had a hand in shaping the foreign policy blasted by the Russian, said in a statement that Vishinsky's views on peace and security are far different from those of most of the rest of the world. Lodge said the world as asking for Russia deeds and not words to demonstrate the Soviet Union's real intentions.

The Soviet delegate opened debate in the Political Committee on his main program for this year's Assembly. He has introduced a resolution calling for a declaration that the first country using the atomic bomb will commit a crime against humanity and be regarded as a war criminal. He also proposes a peace pact among the United States, France, Britain, China and the Soviet Union.

Give Present Controls Chance, Symington Says

Opposes Immediate Price, Wage Curbs

WASHINGTON, Oct. 23 ( ) — W. Stuart Symington today spoke out against immediate price and wage curbs and asked the country to give other inflation controls a "chance to work," saying they might do the job alone.

Symington, who coordinates the whole economic mobilization program from his seat as chairman of the National Security Resources Board, faced reporters at his first news conference since that program began.

It would seem "dangerous," he said, to put sweeping controls on prices and wages without first trying to handle the problem of inflation with others — like higher taxes and curbs on credit buying.

Criticism of these methods is "premature," he said, "because we haven't given them a chance to work yet, and we ought to see what they will do.

"It begins to look as if everybody wants controls so long as the controls don't affect them," he remarked.

He didn't name the critics. Some of the criticism has been directed against the government's failure to invoke price and wage ceilings. Other criticism has been aimed at one or another of the present controls. For example:

Builders have protested recent curbs on real estate credit. And over the weekend, the CIO United Auto Workers said that curbs on consumer credit for the buying of automobiles, household equipment and houses are a "grievous blunder" and will cause mass unemployment.

Symington said he hated to talk about stabilizing prices and wages because "it's not my decision" and the decision must be made by Dr. Alan Valentine with the approval of President Truman.

Valentine is the new economic stabilization administrator. Symington called him a "great choice" for the job, a man of "brains, character, courage."

Sen. Smith Suggests "Ike"-Warren Ticket

ORONO, Me., Oct. 23 (AP)—Sen. Margaret Chase Smith (R-Me) today suggested a 1952 Republican ticket headed by Gen. Dwight Eisenhower and Gov. Earl Warren of California.

Mrs. Smith told University of Maine students and alumni that she is not considering the vice-presidential candidacy.

"I have the job I want and I hope to keep it," she declared in answer to a question.

Her suggestion of Eisenhower and Warren as running mates came when she was pressed for her choice of GOP candidates.

SETH RICHARDSON ... Heads Communist control board

Sen. McCarthy's Reds-In-Science Charge Is Denied

Says AEC Ignores Security Policy

WASHINGTON, Oct. 23. (AP)—Sen. McCarthy (R-Wis) said today that "the ranks of American scientists have been infiltrated to an alarming degree by the Communist enemies of the United States."

"This real threat to the nation's security is a matter which has either been ignored by the Atomic Energy Commission or treated far too lightly by this vital administrative agency of the government," he said in a statement published in an appendix to the Congressional Record.

McCarthy added, "It is the same old story of softness toward Communists which has prevailed in the State Department and the Department of Justice these many years."

Dean Denies Charge

The Democratic majority of a Senate Foreign Relations Subcommittee, which investigated the Senator's earlier charges of Communism in the State Department, found them without foundation.

Gordon Dean, chairman of the Atomic Energy Commission, issued this comment on McCarthy's latest charges:

"Since the Atomic Energy Commission assumed office on Jan. 1, 1947, no person employed by the commission or its contractors nor any of the commission's consultants or advisors has ever been arrested or indicted much less convicted of any act of disloyalty. It is deplorable that statements of the type made by Sen. McCarthy tend to undermine confidence in the atomic energy program in defiance of the facts of a security record which speaks for itself."

McCarthy said that the performance of the Atomic Energy Commission with respect to Communism "calls for a relentless examination."

Senator Cites "Example"

He said the commission's official policy on security clearance of employes "is clear enough and adequate enough," adding that "all that is needed is a strict adherence to and application of this official policy."

"It is a shocking fact," McCarthy said, "that in the cases of many of the most eminent atomic scientists in the United States, there is a presumption of security risks."

As one example of what he called the "Communist infiltration of the ranks of science," McCarthy cited the election of Professor Kirtley Fletcher Mather, of Harvard, as 1951 president of the American Association for the Advancement of Science.

McCarthy said Mather "has been affiliated with upwards of 40 Communist front organizations.

Trio, Dog Found Safe In Cavern

HARLANSBURG, Pa., Oct. 23 (AP)—Hundreds gathered at the mouth of a newly-found cave cheered mightily early today as three young explorers and a little dog were brought to safety after 12 hours in the bat-infested underground tunnels.

Carbide lights of the three failed one by one as they wandered through the maze-like passageways in search of unusual rock and crystal formations. They just sat it out in the pitch blackness 1,800 feet from the entrance until help arrived.

Aided by bloodhounds and twine safety lines to permit safe return to the entrance, one of five rescue groups finally came upon the little group in a large chamber 25 feet from floor to ceiling where whirring bats added to a weird setting.

Crouched together there were Herbert Harkless, 12; Eddie McClelland, 16, son of a funeral director; Ernest Mallinak, 26, construction company worker; and "Andy," McClelland's year-old cocker spaniel.

Glitter And Glamor Lacking As Flynn And Actress Wed

NICE, France, Oct. 23 (AP)—Film Actor Errol Flynn and Actress Patrice Wymore were married today in civil and religious ceremonies on the sunny French Riviera.

After a ceremony before Mayor Charles Palmaro in Monte Carlo this morning, they were wed this afternoon in the Lutheran Church of the Transfiguration.

The bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. James Wymore, Salina, Kan., attended the ceremonies.

The actor was formally attired for the religious ceremony, in contrast to a blue business suit he wore at the civil proceedings in the city of the principality of Monaco. Miss Wymore had on a full length white gown with a four-yard train.

It was the third marriage for the 41-year-old Australian-born Flynn, the first for his bride.

The ceremony was more like a neighborhood wedding that might have taken place in the midwest, rather than on the famed French Riviera. It lacked the glitter and glamor surrounding the usual marriage of Hollywood celebrities.

There was no mob scene and Monaco's police force, which had been mobilized to handle 10,000 persons, had little to do.

Red Bloc Newsnapers Find Less War News

VIENNA, Austria, Oct. 23 (AP)—Newspapers behind the iron curtain are finding less and less news in the Korean war.

Before the Inchon landing, which turned the tide the Allies' way last month, long front-page stories were devoted to "liberation" of Korea by "heroic Korean people's army" troops.

Only recently have the Communist newspapers admitted that the war has been in North, and not South Korea. The Soviet news agency Tass, which supplies these papers with much of their news, has been busying itself with dispatches about American "atrocities."

Score Seized In Half-Dozen Major Cities

Control Board Set Up; Act Challenged

WASHINGTON, Oct. 23 (AP)—The Justice Department today announced a swift crackdown on 86 persons tabbed as active alien Communists. A coast-to-coast roundup netted nearly a score of them in the initial stages.

These aliens, described by officials as having carried on Communist propaganda work, were marked for detention and possible deportation.

FBI agents and U. S. immigration officials were reported on the track of those not yet picked up.

Some of the arrests were made before dawn yesterday. Others were seized in half a dozen cities today.

The Justice Department said the 10 "most important" aliens in the group were taken in first. Later, the department announced the names of five others caught in the net, and federal authorities elsewhere reported further arrests.

Act Is Challenged

All were seized under the 1950 Internal Security Act—the so-called "Communist control" law—which Congress passed over President Truman's veto.

As the roundup continued, President Truman acted to put teeth into the new anti-subversives law by setting up machinery needed for enforcement.

At the same time, a Washington attorney, Ralph A. Powe, sought an injunction in U. S. District Court to halt enforcement of the new act.

Powe said he represented 107 individuals living in 32 states. He challenged the law as unconstitutional.

District Judge F. Dickinson Letts ruled that the street addresses of the 107 petitioners would have to be listed before the petition could be accepted.

Richardson Heads Board

Powe said he would get them and file the petition—possibly setting up the first court test of the new law—within three days.

Mr. Truman appointed a five-man Communist control board, headed by Seth W. Richardson, to determine what organizations and individuals are subject to provisions of the statute.

Three members of the new board, including Richardson, are Republicans. The other two are Democrats.

Reds' Conviction To Be Reviewed

WASHINGTON, Oct. 23 (AP)—The Supreme Court agreed today to rule on the cases of 11 top Communist leaders convicted in New York of conspiracy to overthrow the government by force.

The high tribunal specified that the review be limited to validity of the 1940 Smith Act under which the Red leaders were convicted. That act makes it a crime to advocate or teach overthrow of the government by force and violence.

By limiting the points to be reviewed, the court threw out a long list of complaints raised by the Communists concerning their trial. These included charges that Trial Judge Harold R. Medina showed "extreme hostility" to them, and allegations that the jury was not properly selected.

Arguments on the appeal were set for December 4.

Marshall Orders 5-Month Notice For Reservists

New Policy Result Of Many Complaints

WASHINGTON, Oct. 23 (AP) — Secretary of Defense Marshall today ordered the armed forces to set up a policy which will give reservists about five months advance notice before a call to active duty.

The policy will apply to officers and enlisted men as well. It is a result of widespread complaints by both reservists and employers about the sharply varying methods used by the different services in summoning reservists to duty.

Here is what the Marshall directive does:

1. Each service—the Army, Navy, Marines and Air Force—decide their manpower requirements six months in advance of recall of reservists. They must decide those who are to be recalled now. Reservists who do not fall in this class then will have at least four months in which they will not be notified of recall unless there is a "material change in military requirements."

2. When notice is sent, a reservist will have at least 30 days between the time he is called and the date on which he must report.

3. Each service, as soon as possible, is to go carefully over its lists of reservists in order to bring information on each one up to date.

4. As soon as practicable, each service will remove from its active reserve list all reservists who, for physical or for other valid reasons determined by the service, are not available for extended active duty.

5. Each service will keep reservists on active duty involuntarily only until: (A) The manpower requirements can be met by the draft or volunteers; (B) the involuntary reservists and units have reached a "maximum state of training."

Couple Divorced 38 Years Ago Gets License To Rewed

NEW YORK, Oct. 23 (AP) — A couple divorced in 1912 today got a license to rewed.

Arthur Hunnewell Shaw, 63, Beach Road, Hobe Sound, Fla., and Akrata Von Schrader Carroll, 58, New York City, both had married again since their Massachusetts divorce 38 years ago.

His second wife, the former Nella Barlow, died in 1949, and her second husband, Lauren Carroll, died in 1945.

UMW Drops 1st Round To Lawyer

WASHINGTON, Oct. 23 (AP) —Attorney William L. P. Burke won a preliminary round today in his fight for $35,000 in fees from John L. Lewis and the United Mine Workers welfare fund.

Burke represented the trustees of the $150,000,000-a-year welfare and pension fund in a suit brought against them by George H. Livengood, one-time mine union official at Uniontown, Pa.

Judge Alexander Holtzoff ruled today that while an employer may get rid of an attorney with or without good reason, the court may impose as a condition the payment of a reasonable fee.

The judge followed up by appointing Francis W. Hill, former president of the District of Columbia Bar Association, as special master to determine what a "reasonable" fee would be.

Burke said he based his fee on the amount allowed to attorneys representing other parties in the case.

Attorney Louis Denit, speaking for Lewis and the trustees, offered to pay Burke $15,000.

The Livengood suit still is pending.

Livengood had sued for a full accounting of the welfare fund and demanded complete details as to eligibility after he was stricken from the rolls in August 1949.

Supreme Court Refuses To Rule On Section Of Maryland Ober Act

WASHINGTON, Oct. 23 (AP)—The Supreme Court today refused to consider and decide whether a section of Maryland's Ober law aimed at subversives is legal.

This leaves intact a ruling by the Maryland Court of Appeals that a candidate for governor must sign the special Ober law loyalty oath but that a candidate for Congress need not.

The high court's action will have this effect on Maryland's general election November 7:

Louis Shub, who sought to run for governor on the Progressive ticket, declined to sign an oath. His name will not be on the ballot. Thelma Gerende, Progressive candidate for Congress in the Second District, also refused to sign but her name will be before voters in that district.

As in all such decisions, the Supreme Court's refusal to review the case does not mean that the court feels one way or the other about the issue involved.

Today's ruling, in fact, was on a narrow technical point.

The Maryland Court of Appeals has announced its decision, but it has not yet filed its written opinion. Six members of the Supreme Court —Justices Reed, Frankfurter, Jackson, Burton, Clark and Minton—held that it ought not take up the case at least until an opinion is available. Chief Justice Vinson and Justices Black and Douglas said the court ought to go ahead on the case, inasmuch as it has something to do with the general election two weeks from now.

While no Court of Appeals ruling is yet available, its decision generally is accepted as a finding that the oath may properly be prescribed for candidates for state office but not for candidates for federal office.

French Cabinet Backs West Europe Army

PARIS, Oct. 23 (AP) — The French cabinet agreed today to propose a united Western European army under a European defense minister as a compromise solution on Germany's contribution to Atlantic defense plans. The proposal carefully ducked approval of incorporating Germans into such an army.

The proposal is to be presented for approval of the National Assembly tomorrow by Premier Rene Pleven.

Insistence by any group on an announcement agreeing on German rearmament might have broken up the coalition government. The Socialists, under Defense Minister Jules Moch, fiercely oppose the "principle" of remilitarizing Germany.

Cost Of Living Increases; Index Will Be Revised

Only 0.4 Per Cent Below Record High

WASHINGTON, Oct. 23 (AP)—The Cost of living continued to move upward last month. The government's consumers price index for Sept. 15, announced today, inched up 0.5 per cent from the previous month and stood at 173.8, meaning 73.8 per cent above the 1935-39 average.

This was only 0.4 per cent below the record high of 174.5 in August and September, 1948. It was 2.5 per cent above the level of a year ago and 30 per cent above the index of June, 1946, when most price controls were abandoned.

Index To Be Revised

Meanwhile steps were under way to revise the index to take account of changing buying patterns by consumers and price increases following the Korean invasion.

"Since the outbreak of the fighting in Korea last June, sharp price increases have already occurred in a number of commodities and similar changes may take place in others," explained the Bureau of Labor Statistics, which is responsible for preparing the index.

The index is taking on increasing importance in American business economics as more and more contracts between unions and employers allow for wage changes as the index rises or drops.

Food Prices Decrease

For that reason, the changes necessarily must be made gradually. Next year, two separate sets of indexes will be issued each month, one on the old basis, the other as revisions are incorporated. Some if not all of the cost-of-living wage contracts are tied inflexibly to the old basis of calculation.

The latest 0.5 per cent increase in the index came in the face of a reported decrease of 0.2 per cent in the price of food, one of the big items. Leaders in the upward push were house furnishings and apparel, although fuel, electricity and refrigeration costs were up 0.6 per cent.

Border-Bound South Koreans Continue Push

No More Organized Resistance Likely

SEOUL, Korea, Oct. 23 (AP) — Korean republican troops today plunged onward toward the Manchurian border, a scant 50 miles away, and a U. S. Eighth Army spokesman said he expected no more fighting against organized Red resistance in the Korean war.

While the Republic of Korea (ROK) forces slogged northward, Communists by the thousands poured out of the hills to lay down their arms. The total bag of prisoners passed the 120,000 mark—the equivalent of 12 Red divisions. In the past 24 hours 26,000 had surrendered.

Fleeing fragments of the once-potent North Korean army which invaded South Korea four months ago were funneling into the Kanggye pocket, a triangular area against the Manchurian border. Kanggye is 20 miles southeast of the Yalu River frontier.

Bombers Raid Kanggye

The ROK Sixth Division, closest of all to the Manchurian border, was driving in the direction of Kanggye, where Red Premier Kim Il Sung was reported to be establishing a new command headquarters.

Noting heavy enemy traffic moving in that direction, the U. S. Fifth Air Force Monday raided Kanggye with B-26 attack bombers.

Results were not immediately known.

Kim Il Sung used the Kanggye triangle to wage guerrilla warfare against the Japanese in World War II, before Russian occupation forces made him head man of Communist North Korea in 1945.

The ROK Sixth Division's northward dash was last reported two miles north of Huichon in the center of the Upper Korean Peninsula. This put it within 50 air miles of the border and about 90 miles north of Pyongyang, Allied-captured Red capital.

Two other ROK drives also pushed steadily northward. The Capital Division on the east coast reached Iwon, 18 miles northeast of newly-captured Pukchong and 76 miles southeast of Manchuria. Another spearhead of this division, stabbing through wild, mountainous terrain 18 miles inland, passed Cho, 63 miles south of the frontier.

ROK First Crosses River

The republican First Division crossed the Chongchon river at Kunu, 18 miles north of Sunchon and 70 miles sotuheast of Manchuria.

British 27th Brigade troops likewise crossed the river near there.

The ROK First Division also put troops north of captured Tokchon, 23 miles northeast of Kunu, and at Anju, near the west coast at Korea's narrow waistline.

A ROK Sixth Division column slashed in 15 miles north of Anju and seized the town of Yonkbyon.

Stiffest recent Red resistance was as old as Sunday, in actions involving republican Eighth Division forces and British and Australians 35 to 50 miles north of Pyongyang. The enemy fled after four hours of rear-guard fighting that cost him 200 dead and 300 wounded.

8 Survivors Of Ship Sinking Picked Up

HALIFAX, Oct. 23 (AP)—The Royal Canadian Air Force today reported that eight survivors of the ill-fated freighter North Voyageur have been picked up by a United States Coast Guard vessel off Cape Race, Newfoundland.

The North Voyageur carried a crew of 20, seven of whom were Canadians. Some disappeared about 50 miles southeast of Cape Race Sunday after sending an SOS while on a trip from Philadelphia to St. John's, Nfld.

Church Bells To Echo Peal Of "Freedom Bell" Today

[By The Associated Press]

This is United Nations Day.

President Truman will sound the keynote in a speech before the United Nations General Assembly. Then, from behind the iron curtain, the "Freedom Bell" will ring out in the tower of West Berlin's City Hall.

Church bells in many communities across the United States will echo the peal of the "Freedom Bell" as it sounds along the radio waves of the United States and Europe at 12:03 p. m., Eastern Standard Time. In many places, authorities have called upon the public to offer up "peace prayers" at that moment.

Thousands of schools will join in ceremonies.

It is the fifth anniversary of the day when the United Nations Charter came into effect.

President Truman arranged to take a midnight train from Washington and arrive shortly before dawn in Queens County, N. Y. He will motor to the meeting place of the U. N. Assembly at Flushing Meadow. His speech at 11:30 a. m. (Eastern Standard Time) will be broadcast nationally.

The Berlin bell is a 10-ton affair paid for by popular subscription in the United States. It toured 26 major U. S. cities before it arrived in Berlin last Saturday.

The Justice Department said the 10 "most important" aliens in the group were taken in first. Later, the department announced the names of five others caught in the net, and federal authorities elsewhere reported further arrests.

Act Is Challenged

All were seized under the 1950 Internal Security Act—the so-called "Communist control" law—which Congress passed over President Truman's veto.

As the roundup continued, President Truman acted to put teeth into the new anti-subversives law by setting up machinery needed for enforcement.

At the same time, a Washington attorney, Ralph A. Powe, sought an injunction in U. S. District Court to halt enforcement of the new act.

Powe said he represented 107 individuals living in 32 states. He challenged the law as unconstitutional.

District Judge F. Dickinson Letts ruled that the street addresses of the 107 petitioners would have to be listed before the petition could be accepted.

Richardson Heads Board

Powe said he would get them and file the petition—possibly setting up the first court test of the new law—within three days.

Mr. Truman appointed a five-man Communist control board, headed by Seth W. Richardson, to determine what organizations and individuals are subject to provisions of the statute.

Three members of the new board, including Richardson, are Republicans. The other two are Democrats.

Reds' Conviction To Be Reviewed

WASHINGTON, Oct. 23 (AP)—The Supreme Court agreed today to rule on the cases of 11 top Communist leaders convicted in New York of conspiracy to overthrow the government by force.

The high tribunal specified that the review be limited to validity of the 1940 Smith Act under which the Red leaders were convicted. That act makes it a crime to advocate or teach overthrow of the government by force and violence.

By limiting the points to be reviewed, the court threw out a long list of complaints raised by the Communists concerning their trial. These included charges that Trial Judge Harold R. Medina showed "extreme hostility" to them, and allegations that the jury was not properly selected.

Arguments on the appeal were set for December 4.

Marshall Orders 5-Month Notice For Reservists

New Policy Result Of Many Complaints

WASHINGTON, Oct. 23 (AP) — Secretary of Defense Marshall today ordered the armed forces to set up a policy which will give reservists about five months advance notice before a call to active duty.

The policy will apply to officers and enlisted men as well. It is a result of widespread complaints by both reservists and employers about the sharply varying methods used by the different services in summoning reservists to duty.

Here is what the Marshall directive does:

1. Each service—the Army, Navy, Marines and Air Force—decide their manpower requirements six months in advance of recall of reservists. They must decide those who are to be recalled now. Reservists who do not fall in this class then will have at least four months in which they will not be notified of recall unless there is a "material change in military requirements."

2. When notice is sent, a reservist will have at least 30 days between the time he is called and the date on which he must report.

3. Each service, as soon as possible, is to go carefully over its lists of reservists in order to bring information on each one up to date.

4. As soon as practicable, each service will remove from its active reserve list all reservists who, for physical or for other valid reasons determined by the service, are not available for extended active duty.

5. Each service will keep reservists on active duty involuntarily only until: (A) The manpower requirements can be met by the draft or volunteers; (B) the involuntary reservists and units have reached a "maximum state of training."

Couple Divorced 38 Years Ago Gets License To Rewed

NEW YORK, Oct. 23 (AP) — A couple divorced in 1912 today got a license to rewed.

Arthur Hunnewell Shaw, 63, Beach Road, Hobe Sound, Fla., and Akrata Von Schrader Carroll, 58, New York City, both had married again since their Massachusetts divorce 38 years ago.

His second wife, the former Nella Barlow, died in 1949, and her second husband, Lauren Carroll, died in 1945.

UMW Drops 1st Round To Lawyer

WASHINGTON, Oct. 23 (AP)—Attorney William L. P. Burke won a preliminary round today in his fight for $35,000 in fees from John L. Lewis and the United Mine Workers welfare fund.

Burke represented the trustees of the $150,000,000-a-year welfare and pension fund in a suit brought against them by George H. Livengood, one-time mine union official at Uniontown, Pa.

Judge Alexander Holtzoff ruled today that while an employer may get rid of an attorney with or without good reason, the court may impose as a condition the payment of a reasonable fee.

The judge followed up by appointing Francis W. Hill, former president of the District of Columbia Bar Association, as special master to determine what a "reasonable" fee would be.

Burke said he based his fee on the amount allowed to attorneys representing other parties in the case.

Attorney Louis Denit, speaking for Lewis and the trustees, offered to pay Burke $15,000.

The Livengood suit still is pending.

Livengood had sued for a full accounting of the welfare fund and demanded complete details as to eligibility after he was stricken from the rolls in August 1949.

French Cabinet Backs West Europe Army

PARIS, Oct. 23 (AP) — The French cabinet agreed today to propose a united Western European army under a European defense minister as a compromise solution on Germany's contribution to Atlantic defense plans. The proposal carefully ducked approval of incorporating Germans into such an army.

The proposal is to be presented for approval of the National Assembly tomorrow by Premier Rene Pleven.

Insistence by any group on an announcement agreeing on German rearmament might have broken up the coalition government. The Socialists, under Defense Minister Jules Moch, fiercely oppose the "principle" of remilitarizing Germany.

Cost Of Living Increases; Index Will Be Revised

Only 0.4 Per Cent Below Record High

WASHINGTON, Oct. 23 (AP)—The Cost of living continued to move upward last month. The government's consumers price index for Sept. 15, announced today, inched up 0.5 per cent from the previous month and stood at 173.8, meaning 73.8 per cent above the 1935-39 average.

This was only 0.4 per cent below the record high of 174.5 in August and September, 1948. It was 2.5 per cent above the level of a year ago and 30 per cent above the index of June, 1946, when most price controls were abandoned.

Index To Be Revised

Meanwhile steps were under way to revise the index to take account of changing buying patterns by consumers and price increases following the Korean invasion.

"Since the outbreak of the fighting in Korea last June, sharp price increases have already occurred in a number of commodities and similar changes may take place in others," explained the Bureau of Labor Statistics, which is responsible for preparing the index.

The index is taking on increasing importance in American business economics as more and more contracts between unions and employers allow for wage changes as the index rises or drops.

Food Prices Decrease

For that reason, the changes necessarily must be made gradually. Next year, two separate sets of indexes will be issued each month, one on the old basis, the other as revisions are incorporated. Some if not all of the cost-of-living wage contracts are tied inflexibly to the old basis of calculation.

The latest 0.5 per cent increase in the index came in the face of a reported decrease of 0.2 per cent in the price of food, one of the big items. Leaders in the upward push were house furnishings and apparel, although fuel, electricity and refrigeration costs were up 0.6 per cent.

Border-Bound South Koreans Continue Push

No More Organized Resistance Likely

SEOUL, Korea, Oct. 23 (AP) — Korean republican troops today plunged onward toward the Manchurian border, a scant 50 miles away, and a U. S. Eighth Army spokesman said he expected no more fighting against organized Red resistance in the Korean war.

While the Republic of Korea (ROK) forces slogged northward, Communists by the thousands poured out of the hills to lay down their arms. The total bag of prisoners passed the 120,000 mark—the equivalent of 12 Red divisions. In the past 24 hours 26,000 had surrendered.

Fleeing fragments of the once-potent North Korean army which invaded South Korea four months ago were funneling into the Kanggye pocket, a triangular area against the Manchurian border. Kanggye is 20 miles southeast of the Yalu River frontier.

Bombers Raid Kanggye

The ROK Sixth Division, closest of all to the Manchurian border, was driving in the direction of Kanggye, where Red Premier Kim Il Sung was reported to be establishing a new command headquarters.

Noting heavy enemy traffic moving in that direction, the U. S. Fifth Air Force Monday raided Kanggye with B-26 attack bombers.

Results were not immediately known.

Kim Il Sung used the Kanggye triangle to wage guerrilla warfare against the Japanese in World War II, before Russian occupation forces made him head man of Communist North Korea in 1945.

The ROK Sixth Division's northward dash was last reported two miles north of Huichon in the center of the Upper Korean Peninsula. This put it within 50 air miles of the border and about 90 miles north of Pyongyang, Allied-captured Red capital.

Two other ROK drives also pushed steadily northward. The Capital Division on the east coast reached Iwon, 18 miles northeast of newly-captured Pukchong and 76 miles southeast of Manchuria. Another spearhead of this division, stabbing through wild, mountainous terrain 18 miles inland, passed Cho, 63 miles south of the frontier.

ROK First Crosses River

The republican First Division crossed the Chongchon river at Kunu, 18 miles north of Sunchon and 70 miles sotuheast of Manchuria.

British 27th Brigade troops likewise crossed the river near there.

The ROK First Division also put troops north of captured Tokchon, 23 miles northeast of Kunu, and at Anju, near the west coast at Korea's narrow waistline.

A ROK Sixth Division column slashed in 15 miles north of Anju and seized the town of Yonkbyon.

Stiffest recent Red resistance was as old as Sunday, in actions involving republican Eighth Division forces and British and Australians 35 to 50 miles north of Pyongyang. The enemy fled after four hours of rear-guard fighting that cost him 200 dead and 300 wounded.

8 Survivors Of Ship Sinking Picked Up

HALIFAX, Oct. 23 (AP)—The Royal Canadian Air Force today reported that eight survivors of the ill-fated freighter North Voyageur have been picked up by a United States Coast Guard vessel off Cape Race, Newfoundland.

The North Voyageur carried a crew of 20, seven of whom were Canadians. Some disappeared about 50 miles southeast of Cape Race Sunday after sending an SOS while on a trip from Philadelphia to St. John's, Nfld.

Supreme Court Refuses To Rule On Section Of Maryland Ober Act

WASHINGTON, Oct. 23 (AP)—The Supreme Court today refused to consider and decide whether a section of Maryland's Ober law aimed at subversives is legal.

This leaves intact a ruling by the Maryland Court of Appeals that a candidate for governor must sign the special Ober law loyalty oath but that a candidate for Congress need not.

The high court's action will have this effect on Maryland's general election November 7:

Louis Shub, who sought to run for governor on the Progressive ticket, declined to sign an oath. His name will not be on the ballot. Thelma Gerende, Progressive candidate for Congress in the Second District, also refused to sign but her name will be before voters in that district.

As in all such decisions, the Supreme Court's refusal to review the case does not mean that the court feels one way or the other about the issue involved.

Today's ruling, in fact, was on a narrow technical point.

The Maryland Court of Appeals has announced its decision, but it has not yet filed its written opinion. Six members of the Supreme Court —Justices Reed, Frankfurter, Jackson, Burton, Clark and Minton—held that it ought not take up the case at least until an opinion is available. Chief Justice Vinson and Justices Black and Douglas said the court ought to go ahead on the case, inasmuch as it has something to do with the general election two weeks from now.

While no Court of Appeals ruling is yet available, its decision generally is accepted as a finding that the oath may properly be prescribed for candidates for state office but not for candidates for federal office.

Glitter And Glamor Lacking As Flynn And Actress Wed

NICE, France, Oct. 23 (AP)—Film Actor Errol Flynn and Actress Patrice Wymore were married today in civil and religious ceremonies on the sunny French Riviera.

After a ceremony before Mayor Charles Palmaro in Monte Carlo this morning, they were wed this afternoon in the Lutheran Church of the Transfiguration.

The bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. James Wymore, Salina, Kan., attended the ceremonies.

The actor was formally attired for the religious ceremony, in contrast to a blue business suit he wore at the civil proceedings in the city of the principality of Monaco. Miss Wymore had on a full length white gown with a four-yard train.

It was the third marriage for the 41-year-old Australian-born Flynn, the first for his bride.

The ceremony was more like a neighborhood wedding that might have taken place in the midwest, rather than on the famed French Riviera. It lacked the glitter and glamor surrounding the usual marriage of Hollywood celebrities.

There was no mob scene and Monaco's police force, which had been mobilized to handle 10,000 persons, had little to do.

Church Bells To Echo Peal Of "Freedom Bell" Today

[By The Associated Press]

This is United Nations Day.

President Truman will sound the keynote in a speech before the United Nations General Assembly. Then, from behind the iron curtain, the "Freedom Bell" will ring out in the tower of West Berlin's City Hall.

Church bells in many communities across the United States will echo the peal of the "Freedom Bell" as it sounds along the radio waves of the United States and Europe at 12:03 p. m., Eastern Standard Time. In many places, authorities have called upon the public to offer up "peace prayers" at that moment.

Thousands of schools will join in ceremonies.

It is the fifth anniversary of the day when the United Nations Charter came into effect.

President Truman arranged to take a midnight train from Washington and arrive shortly before dawn in Queens County, N. Y. He will motor to the meeting place of the U. N. Assembly at Flushing Meadow. His speech at 11:30 a. m. (Eastern Standard Time) will be broadcast nationally.

The Berlin bell is a 10-ton affair paid for by popular subscription in the United States. It toured 26 major U. S. cities before it arrived in Berlin last Saturday.

UN Day, Crusade To Be Observed Here Today

Ceremonies in observance of United Nations Day and the Crusade for Freedom will be held today in City Hall auditorium, beginning at 10 a. m.

Church bells will ring for a ten-minute period beginning at 10:50 a. m. Commissioner William H. Buchholtz will preside at the ceremonies in City Hall, where Mayor Thomas S. Post will speak and Richard Dailey, Fort Hill High School senior, will give his prize-winning oration on "I Speak For Democracy." Protestant, Catholic and Jewish representatives will offer prayer.

In local high schools and on the radio, members of Buchholtz's committee will be delivering talks on the U. N. and its importance as an instrument for peace.

In connection with such observances throughout the country, a huge Freedom Bell will be rung in Berlin, carrying a message of hope to peoples behind the Iron Curtain and climaxing the nationwide Crusade For Freedom. The ceremony will be broadcast at noon.

Flags will be displayed here today.

Buchholtz announced yesterday Attorney John Mackey will address the combined student bodies of LaSalle and Catholic Girls Central High Schools this morning. He replaces Thomas B. Finan who was forced to cancel because of court committments.

Junior Red Cross Program Planned

Again this year a Junior Red Cross program will be carried out in Allegany county schools, Miss Jane Botsford, chairman, reports.

Last year students in elementary and high schools prepared 294 gift boxes for children overseas in addition to holiday menu forms for Veterans hospitals.

Miss Botsford said there was 100 per cent enrollment in the program in 1949 and added the same cooperation is anticipated this year.

Hunter Is Booked In W. Va. Fatality

Charged with "careless and negligent shooting," a misdemeanor, John E. Twigg, 32, 1100 Oldtown Road, is free under $1,000 bond pending action at the January term of Hampshire County, W. Va. court, according to West Virginia authorities.

Twigg was ordered held following an inquest yesterday into the death Saturday morning of John Delawder, 57, Paw Paw, W. Va., in a hunting accident near Paw Paw. Delawder died of a heart wound while enroute to Memorial Hospital here.

A. L. Russell, coroner of Hampshire county, said Twigg and other witnesses yesterday morning visited the scene of the shooting on the Granes-Milburn Farm. Later a warrant for his arrest was obtained.

Russell said Twigg reiterated a previous statement that he was hunting alone for turkeys, with a .12 gauge shotgun, when he saw a movement in a clump of spruce trees about 75 feet away. The defendant said he shot and then heard Delawder scream that he had been wounded.

Services will be conducted at 2 p. m. today at Paw Paw Methodist Church by Rev. O. M. Haines, pastor. Burial will follow in Camp Hill Cemetery near Paw Paw.

Creek Road Work To Begin Soon

Work on the Lower Town Creek Road will be started in about a week. The contract for building one mile of the road has been awarded to the George F. Hazelwood Construction Company, this city, according to G. Bates Chaires, district engineer of the State Roads Commission.

Due to the approach of the winter season the contractor will only clear rights-of-way and install drainage pipes beneath the road where needed at this time.

The job will be completed next year when the construction season opens early in the spring, Chaires pointed out.

The Hazelwood firm made the low bid of $40,800 to do the work.

Completion of the one mile stretch will add another link to the two miles already completed from U. S. Route 40 southward toward Oldtown. The road starts at a point beyond Flintstone on Route 40.

The project is being jointly sponsored by the Allegany County Board of Commissioners and the federal government.

The county provides a little over half of the funds while the federal government grants the balance in the secondary road program.

Mine Explosion Investigation Still Continues

State Police Probe Extensive Blast

Cpl. Samuel Conrad of State Police is continuing his investigation into a triple blast which caused extensive damage at a coal strip-mining operation in Garrett county, two miles north of Barton.

An estimate of damage to a power shovel and bulldozer ranged between $10,000 and $12,000, according to F. P. Gaither, this city, operator of the project.

During the past summer only between 500 and 600 tons of coal were mined, Gaither said. Market for this type coal is limited, he said. Only two men, both non-union, worked at the mine.

The explosion, which occurred Sunday morning, was the third of its type in this area this year. The other incidents occurred at the Arthur P. Hoffa Coal Company near Barton.

In the blasts on Gaither's property, two explosive charges were connected to the power shovel, according to Cpl. Conrad. An additional charge was placed on the bulldozer. Seeping gasoline from a fuel line on the bulldozer set the machine afire and Barton volunteer firemen were called to quell the blaze.

Asked if he had been threatened prior to yesterday's blast Gaither said that there had been a Pennsylvanian at the stripping job about two months ago who told a shovel operator that the job "would have to shut down."

Gaither said he had been operating along the George's Creek for the past five years and that things had become "progressively worse in recent months."

He praised the work of State Police in responding to the situation quickly yesterday.

State Police said the explosive must have been quite large due to the distance which the blast was heard. Residents of Lonaconing said the blast shook windows, with the first explosion being followed within minutes by two more.

Medical Board To Be Named By Draft Heads

Before doctors, dentists and veterinarians are classified for duty in the Armed Forces a medical advisory board which is to be named will issue a report to the draft board.

Word that plans for the board are being formulated has been received here, according to P. Emmett Fahey, clerk-coordinator of draft boards here.

Eight medical men registered last week for service in compliance with a proclamation issued by President Truman. Physical examinations for the group will begin November 15 and end December 16.

Other draft registrations for the medical profession are to be completed by January 16, Fahey pointed out.

Yesterday morning 55 registrants from Board Nos. 27 and 29 left Queen City Station for preinduction physical tests in Martinsburg, W. Va.

Revival Thursday

A revival and prayer meeting will be conducted Thursday at 7:30 p. m. at the Oak Dale Methodist Church with Rev. T. J. Brant, Cumberland, as the speaker.

Panties Thieves Fined

BALTIMORE, Oct. 23 (AP)—Four longshoremen were fined $10 apiece today after they were convicted of stealing 45 pairs of women's panties yesterday from a loading pier in the harbor.

No New Chief Clerk Likely Until December

No successor to Charles H. Hyde, whose resignation as chief clerk of Trial Magistrates Court becomes effective October 31, is planned by the Allegany County Board of Commissioners until December.

The appointment to replace Hyde will probably be made early in December when the new board organizes.

Roller Derby Begins Today

South End entries in the Fireball Speed Roller Skating Derby will compete today at 4 p. m. at Thomas S. Post Playground, Lafayette Street, according to Edmund F. Hoey, recreation director.

Eliminations also are being held at 4 o'clock this afternoon at Gephart School Playground for East Side. This was scheduled for yesterday at 4 p. m., but it was postponed until today because of rain.

Tomorrow, West Side's derby will be held at 4 p. m. at Walnut Place between Greene and Paca Streets; and North End's at 4 o'clock at Columbia Street.

Finals are set for Thursday at a site to be announced.

Entries have been received from 13 schools with the number ranging from 20 to 50. All are 15 years of age or under, Hoey said.

Competition has been divided into three age groups—six to eight, nine to eleven, and twelve to fifteen, Hoey said.

Movie Star Mickey Rooney will present trophies to the winners making the presentations by phone from Hollywood, Hoey said.

The award program is scheduled for Saturday on the stage of Schine's Liberty Theatre.

Group Will Meet

The Cumberland Industrial Promotion Corporation will meet on call of Vice President Benjamin Kamens at 4 p. m. Thursday at the Chamber of Commerce office.

Ahead With Television

There ought now to be no further governmental obstacle to the extension of television to the rest of the nation. The licensing of new stations has been held up pending the end of the long wrangle over color television; that now has been ended as far as the Federal Communications Commission is concerned. It can now turn its attention back to the matter of new station licenses.

Action may not be immediate, however. The FCC choice of a color system upsets, among other things, the present plan of channel allocations. There might be nothing to prevent the immediate issuance of such licenses as may be accomodated in the present band, since it probably will be reserved for black-and-white service. But it may be too much to expect that such a procedure will be followed while the FCC wrestles with channel allocations in the higher band in which expansion is to take place.

Receiver manufacturers estimate that television broadcasts now are available to about sixty per cent of the population. The distribution is in a crazy-quilt pattern with no rhyme or reason because the issuance of licenses was simply frozen where it happened to be at the moment two years ago when the FCC decided to consider additional channel allocations. If present available channels were put to full use television on present standards could be made available everywhere. Development of cables and radio relay systems is taking chain programs to a rapidly spreading area. The impact which television has had on sixty per cent of the population may soon be felt by the rest.

As to color, the present situation does not justify a prediction of speedy development. The industry is far from persuaded that the color system approved by the FCC is the one which will prevail. A substantial audience for color broadcasts seems far in the future, and until there is an audience commercial development also will lack radio's next most vital participant —the sponsor.

Little Man Will Pay

One of the toughest problems the administration faces is to discover the source of $10,000,000,000 in new taxes to finance the defense program. Congress wrestled with the problem up to the minute of adjournment without finding the solution.

Many of the government planners are looking in the direction of excess profits levies, in an effort to give the impression to millions of voters that profits taxes are paid by the so-called rich and do not come out of the pockets of the "people."

All realistic facts in business disprove that claim. When a corporation makes its plans and arranges its cost sheets and other details of operation necessary to survival, it lists taxes as one of the principal items. Taxes are not paid out of some mythical surplus funds, but are lumped with other items of cost and added to the selling price of the commodity, to be paid ultimately by the consumer. These taxes are no less real because they may be invisible to many eyes.

Whatever new levies are made will affect the little man regardless of the form they may take. Because revenue can be obtained quickly and directly from people of small means, through deductions from incomes, the bulk will continue to come from that source.

A more realistic method of financing the preparedness program would be to eliminate needless waste, which continues to suck billions of dollars down a political rathole.

The Loafer Problem

While the government is scurrying about trying to find enough men to meet military quotas without disrupting the nation's economy, and industry is seeking more workers, both are discovering the unpleasant fact that the ranks of the loafers have not diminished through the years.

In fact, under present governmental practices, aided by the benefits of social welfare, the number of malingerers has increased.

Workers are needed on the farms and in the factories, yet there is no response from men to be found in every community who seem to have no visible means of support, and who spend their time in idleness.

Frequently the comment is heard: "Put 'em in the Army." But loafers are no more useful in the Army than in civilian jobs. The loafer is a total loss in any field of endeavor. He has no training in any skill, he accepts no responsibility for his personal welfare and is simply an encumbrance on the fringe of society, existing upon the labor of others.

Many find security under the liberal provisions of social welfare. Unemployment rolls probably contain the names of many who exploit that setup for unjustified handouts. These remain the human debris in the current of life, of no use to themselves or to the communities burdened with them.

Mr. Mack Retires

It is not difficult to realize that it was hard for Connie Mack to decide to retire as manager of the Philadelphia Athletics. He organized this big league baseball team 50 years ago and has been running it ever since. With it he won nine pennants and five world championships.

In its ranks and under his direction have been some of the greatest players of all time. But it is better for him and the team that the separation should come now. There is a tremendous rebuilding job to be done in Philadelphia and, in the exacting and highly competitive sport of baseball, this is no task for an old man.

Mr. Mack always has been a credit to baseball. To him the followers of the sport everywhere owe a debt of gratitude.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

Sh! You'll Wake The Baby

NOISE is nerve wracking and is a terrible price to pay for our present civilization. But the situation is not hopeless and if all of us were willing to cooperate by creating less din, our communities would be far more pleasant to live in. Improvements along this line require attention to details at home, at work, and on the road.

The individual is responsible for much of the everyday racket. This cannot be appreciated unless we attempt to analyze the source of the hubbub. Mrs. Brown, for example, contributes because she talks loud enough to be heard in four counties. Her family plays the radio, phonograf, or television at full blast as if they had to supply music for the entire neighborhood. Roger is a nice kid but we all wish he would get the muffler on his hotrod repaired and stop racing his motor to impress others with its power.

And there is the fellow whose motor needs tuning so that the engine won't backfire. We can hear him a mile away when he halts at the stop sign on Main Street. He should get his brakes repaired since squealing is for pigs and not machines. Needless horn blowing is another pet peeve. The boy who gives a toot or two when he leaves his friends is only half as annoying as the jerk who leans on his horn to signal his arrival because he is too lazy to get out and ring the doorbell. These drivers also prefer the horn to their brakes and, instead of slowing down or stopping, honk for everyone to get out of their way. Blaring radios from parked cars at night also prove disturbing, as well as the chatter and harmonizing of convivial late homecomers. Individually the man, woman, or child may not be making much noise but when the sounds are multiplied the total assumes alarming proportions.

Factories, business offices, and transportation facilities also contribute to the din. But this too can be reduced provided each group decides to do something about it. Sound absorbent building material is probably the most effective weapon we have. Soundproofing the walls and ceilings will trap sound waves instead of permitting them to be reflected. Covering the floors with cork or a similar substance also of value.

Isolating machinery by the use of resilient or felt pads helps to eliminate noise that stems from structural vibrations. Obviously, this would be expensive to build into old and well established plants but should be considered when new equipment or replacement of worn and obsolete machinery is needed. In addition, hand and motor trucks that carry materials indoor should be equipped with rubber tires.

If noise cannot be reduced the workers will benefit from the use of ear stoppers. Ordinary cotton mixed with petroleum jelly will shut out from 15 to 20 decibels of sound. This helps considerably because many studies have proved that excessive noise has a deleterious effect on the health and working ability of the employe. Furthermore, the amount of money paid for noise in terms of health, comfort, and efficiency is amply described in the slogan, "A dollar a noise."

DISCOLORATIONS OF SCLERA

K. C. writes: In jaundice, are whites of the eyes completely yellow or do yellow spots appear here and there?

The entire sclera usually becomes yellow in jaundice. The spots you refer to are caused by degenerative processes and are in no way related to the liver.

APOPLEXY

T. P. writes: Can a stroke occur without unconsciousness?

Yes. In minor strokes there may be only a temporary confusion together with headache and a feeling of pressure. Send a stamped, self-addressed envelope for leaflet on apoplexy.

BURSITIS OF ELBOW

W. G. F. writes: My elbow was injured and some fluid has appeared. Is it necessary to have surgical treatment for this condition?

This is an individual problem but many physicians advise surgery only after other and more simple methods fail to cure.

SUN AND TUBERCULOSIS

P. S. writes: I have been told that people with tuberculosis should stay out of the sun. I always thought the sun was good for them. Will you please advise?

We now know that Old Sol aggravates tuberculous lesions and, as a result, physicians discourage overexposure.

Long-Range View Of Politics Often Clarifying; Big-Money Boys' Political Influence Decried; Merry-Go-Round Revealed Hanley-Dewey Story Months Ago

Says DREW PEARSON

PORTLAND, Ore. — Sometimes politics looks a little clearer when you get off and take a long-range view of it.

At any rate, I have been taking a bird's-eye view of all the rumpus kicked up in New York over the question of how Governor Dewey inveigled, enticed or "bribed" Lt. Gov. Joe Hanley out of the governorship race. And it seems to me that my colleagues of the press back East are missing a big part of the story.

The story really began about the last week in August when Winthrop Aldrich of the Chase National Bank telephone his brother-in-law, John D. Rockefeller Jr., at Bar Harbor, Maine, asking his help in getting Lt. Gov. Hanley out of the race for governor. This was before Dewey got into the picture.

And the moral to the whole story is that when you get the big-money boys into politics something always smells.

The story is all in the back files of the Washington Merry-Go-Round and since the politicos are still gasping for breath over it maybe the details are worth retelling now.

The story began last August 31 as follows: "Powerfull efforts were made over the weekend to persuade Lt. Gov. Joe Hanley to withdraw from the race for governor in favor of Tom Dewey.

"Winthrop Aldrich, head of the Chase bank, conferred in Bar Harbor with his brother-in-law, John D. Rockefeller, and together they telephoned Roy Howard, head of the Scripps-Howard newspapers and a powerful Dewey backer. They also phoned Frank Gannett, head of the Ganett newspaper chain and asked him to come to New York immediately. Gannett was reached on his yacht on Lake Ontario and flew to New York in his private plane for lunch with Aldrich. With him went Carl Hallennauer of the Bausch and Lomb Optical Company. Meanwhile, Roy Howard promised to write an editorial in the New York World-Telegram urging that Governor Dewey be drafted for a third term."

In other words the Wall Street boys, not Tom Dewey, made the first move to entice Hanley out of the running. Publisher Gannett incidentally would not go along. Though he lunched with Aldrich at the Chase bank, he refused to plump for Dewey.

Next chapter in this political story was told in the Merry-Go-Round on September 8 as follows:

"Deweyite pressure on Lt. Gov. Joe Hanley to withdraw from the New York gubernatorial race was so intense Friday night that for a time Hanley lost the use of his one good eye."

In his now famous letter to Kingsland Macy telling of the financial guarantees made him, Hanley also tells how he is fearful of going blind.

"Seventy-four years old, Hanley has one glass eye while the other eye is not strong," the Merry-Go-Round continued. "Therefore, when subjected to terrific pressure to withdraw in favor of Dewey he lost his sight completely. On the Saturday and Sunday following the visit with Dewey's friends, Hanley was not able to recognize anyone except by voice.

"On Monday sufficient rest had restored his vision. During the conference with Dewey and friends neither Frank Gannett nor Norman Gould of the Gould Pump Co. were unable to reach him. It was they who helped raise the kitty to pay up Hanley's $30,000 debts but even they could not get to their man during the crucial conference which 'drafted' Dewey. Most interesting fact was that Dewey was anything but drafted."

Third chapter was the actual terms of the pay-off to Hanley to run for the U. S. Senate instead of governor. This was published in the Washington Merry-Go-Round September 13, namely, that Hanley, if defeated for the Senate, would be appointed to the New York Thruway Commission at $15,000 and also be made vice president of an oil company at $15,000 annually.

"Friends in the Dewey camp have also promised to repay the $30,000 which Kingsland Macy, Frank Gannett and Norman Gould put up to pay off Hanley's debts" quoted W.M.G.R. on September 13.

However, the full story of Hanley and Dewey goes back even further, to when Governor Dewey conducted a grand jury investigation of Lt. Gov. Hanley and other Albany legislators—then suddenly called off the grand jury. Since then Dewey and Hanley have been friends only on the surface. Since then also Hanley has been struggling to pay off his indebtedness. The facts were never published in the New York newspapers but here is the account carried in the Merry-Go-Round six years ago—Oct. 31, 1944.

"An Albany grand jury was scheduled to probe a charge that Lieutenant Governor Hanley put his son on the state payroll and then drew most of the salary paid to his son. Any such violation would be a violation of New York State law.

"This column interviewed Hanley and he admitted that his son Jim had been employed as an attorney for Meach, Harmon, Lytell, Blackmore and Biff, an accounting firm, from April 1, 1939 to July 1, 1939 while the firm was installing a new system of budgeting costs for New York alone. During that brief period young Hanley received $3,000. Of that amount $2,000 turned up in the bank account of his father.

"I didn't know the money had been put in my account," Hanley told this column, "until I went to the bank to arrange a loan and they told me I didn't need to borrow any money since my son had deposited some to my account."

However, just as Governor Dewey began to strike pay dirt through his grand jury in Albany suddenly he called off the dogs. The grand jury proceedings were suspended. Likewise suspended in mid-air was an armed truce between the governor of New York and his lieutenant government.

And the only thing that has brought them together has been the stark necessity of putting up a united front re the incriminating Hanley letter or else sinking individually.

MATTER OF FACT

By JOSEPH ALSOP

Taft At The Hustings

VERSAILLES, OHIO

THE energy and endurance displayed by the sixty-two-year old Senator Robert A. Taft in his campaign for re-election must be seen to be believed. The hour Taft spent in this small, pleasant, rural town in southwestern Ohio gives some idea of the sort of campaign Taft is waging, all day, every day.

The first thing you see as you enter the town is a large truck, patriotically draped in red, white and blue, drawn up in front of the main square. Gathered around the truck are perhaps two hundred and fifty people: students from the local schools, looking self-consciously serious; the high school band, magnificent in scarlet costumes; local businessmen (many of whom look as though they might be the candidate's brother), and their wives; well-fed farmers from the flat rich land round about.

As Taft appears, in the back seat of the open light blue limousine of a local Republican bigwig, there is a little whisper of interest, and some desultory clapping. There is nothing in the scene to suggest that great issues depend on the fate of this particular candidate—the future course of the Republican party, the direction of American foreign policy, see the success or failure of the Truman administration's alliance with organized labor, perhaps even the identity of the next President.

The scene suggests, instead, a cheerful Sunday school outing, presided over by a rather irascible schoolmaster. Here, as in the United States Senate, there is between Senator Taft and his audience something of the relationship between teacher and taught. Taft mounts the truck, removes the wilted grey felt hat which appears to have been worn, and sat on, by generations of Tafts, and looks about him. You get the feeling that he is not going to take any nonsense from his pupils. Then Taft smlies.

Angry Man

It is the charming smile of an essential shy man who does not smile easily. But it is the last smile his audience gets. There are no jokes, no casual chitchat in the speech which follows. It is a formal set speech, and a long one—too long, indeed, for a standing audience, and there are signs of restlessness before it ends. Yet on the whole, the people of Versailles listen attentively.

Senator Taft is no great shakes as an orator. But an audience will always listen to an angry man, and Senator Taft is clearly a very angry man indeed. When he has finished, there is certainly no wild excitement, but there is obviously sympathy and even some enthusiasm. With a rather limp hand, Taft acknowledges the clapping, and he is off to make much the same speech all over again, in the tiny town of Russia, some miles away.

For ten weeks now, this scene has been repeated with minor variations, nine or ten times a day. With November 7 looming near, Taft is now making as many as fourteen speeches in a single day, exhausting whole platoons of assistants and reporters. And the astonishing energy of Taft's campaign—for which even his enemies admire him—has its significance. For Taft is "running scared."

There is one thing on which Taft and his mortal enemies, the labor leaders, agree. To balance the anti-Taft majority in the industrial centers, Taft must hold close to sixty percent of the predominantly Republican rural vote—and above all, the rural voters must be persuaded to go to the polls. This explains why Taft plans to campaign in every crossroad's hamlet in Ohio before Election Day.

No one in Ohio is making any predictions about the outcome of this election—the most crucial off-year election in many years. But one of Taft's major hurdles is physically evident to the senses in this part of southwestern Ohio.

Taft Strategy Explained

For here in this flat fertile land you can see—you can almost smell—prosperity. By all the rules, this is Republican territory, here where almost no one is very rich and almost no one is very poor and almost everyone is reasonably comfortable. But equally by all the rules, when people are satisfied with things as they are, they are not willing to go to very much trouble to kick the rascals out—the rascals in this case being the Truman administration.

This in turn explains Taft's campaign strategy, as revealed in the speeches he has been making in hundreds of towns like Versailles. For Taft concentrates not on the prosperous present, but on an awful

Investigation Of Korean Debacle Soon Is Possible

By DAVID LAWRENCE

WASHINGTON, Oct. 23 — When the elections are over and Congress reconvenes, there may be an investigation of the debacle in Korea.

For while the United Nations forces have been victorious and there has been brilliant maneuvering by all three of our armed services, the fact remains that more than 25,000 casualties have been incurred—many of them needlessly.

Among the politicians and some of the apologists for the administration, especially during a political campaign, the emphasis is placed on the victories and there is a deliberate tendency to try to make the people forget what happened before June 25th, when the Korean war broke out.

Louis Johnson has been made the goat for the mistakes that led up to the debacle in Korea but he took the advice of the U. S. Joint Chiefs of Staff whose two-to-one vote sent virtually the entire American Navy into mothballs and grounded the U. S. Marines 8,000 miles away from the trouble areas of the Far East.

The United States Navy's fleet in being scuttled and despite the hurry-up moves to get a semblance of a fleet into commission for the Korean affair, the fact remains today that, as a consequence of requirements in Korea the United States has no fighting fleet in the Atlantic and a mere fragment of a fleet in the Mediterranean.

Who was responsible for scuttling the fleet in being? This is a vital question for the future because the reasons why two members of the U. S. Joint Chiefs of Staff voted as they did to advise Secretary Johnson to curtail these services have never been revealed. This does not involve military secrets—certainly not now. It involves blunders in judgment that should not be hushed up.

The mothers and fathers and the families of the thousands killed in Korea and of the many more thousands missing and probably dead and of the many thousands condemned to spend the rest of their lives as invalids get small comfort out of the tendency to gloss over the mistakes made. They are entitled to the assurance that the sacrifices were not in vain and that the lessons taught by the blunders prior to June 25th have been taken to heart and that punishment will be neted out to those responsible for the blunders.

Specifically the American people are entitled to the assurance that the men who made America's military policy and made such a mess of it before June 25th are no longer in a position now to influence military policy.

The biggest mistake of all those made before the Korean war broke out was made by those army and air force spokesmen who spread the falsehood that the navy or the marine corps opposed unification. On the basis of that outcry the navy was punished and the air wings of the marine corps almost entirely abolished.

The navy always has and always will favor integration. That's exactly what the so-called unification law provides and what Chairman Vinson of the House Armed Services committee and a unanimous committee behind him favors. Integration means letting each service retain its specializations and functions as outlined in the law subject only to over-all budget limitations. "Unification" thus far has meant allowing the heads to two armed services to decide what appropriations the third shall have.

The U. S. Air Force as an independent service has come to stay. Its main function is strategic bombing. It no longer has to justify its right to independence. But the Korean war shows plainly that the air force blundered in failing to set up enough units to work constantly with ground forces. The army once had its own tactical units. If within the independent air force a sizable tactical air command—to work flexibly with ground troop divisions—is to be set up as planned now, the question then arises why this wasn't done before Korea and who was responsible for failing to provide the ground troops with the tactical air units they require, especially for night flying and varying weather conditions. It is superficial argument to say, as General Stratemeyer of the air force said in Tokyo recently, that America cannot plan its military policy hereafter on what happened in Korea because the enemy had virtually no air force there. The truth is that "model" war conditions never occur and that the United States must plan its military policy to meet all kinds of conditions and particularly must have in mind that the Pacific Ocean as well as European waters will be sources of potential trouble for decades to come.

Twenty-five thousand casualties is a lot of casualties for a so-called local war. The Inchon landing won the victory but unless some committee of Congress finds out why there was no fleet or equipment in the Pacific in readiness to make amphibious landings not in 90 days, but instantly ,especially in a waterbound area like Korea, the true reasons for the Korean debacle will never be revealed to the American people. If the building up of adequate armament is the deterrent to aggression that is claimed for it nowadays, then the presence of adequate air, army and navy strength in the Far East ready to fight could perhaps have prevented the Korean war altogether.

These Days

By GEORGE E. SOKOLSKY

The Shadow Of Fear

I do not believe that I quite realized what the wars we have been in and the atom bomb have done to us until I attended a meeting of the Board of Trade of Washington, D. C. and listened to a calm businesslike discussion of preparations for the day of doom.

It was all in the American manner. Brigadier General Gordon R. Young, one of the commissioners of the capital city of our nation, without dramatics of any kind, read of the plans, the present accomplishments, the proposals for the future, the committees appointed and to be appointed. Then some of the committee chairmen were called upon to rise and take a bow and there was applause.

Curiously, just before he spoke, a small boy appealed for the boys' club and an active young man made a thrilling campaign for the Community Chest, for charity and pity, for mutual aid within the community. Then came the preparations for doom.

This is stark reality. Never before in our history have Americans organized in despair over their own fate. We have organized to aid others in distress, to care for the victims of floods and earthquakes, to provide food for the sufferers of droughts or for the wounded in war or for little children who were starving. Ours has always been a charitable nation, sharing our surplus with others.

But this is something altogether different, and its business-like character, the calmness of recital, the attention of the audience to the multitude of detail—here is something really frightening. It is an alteration in the attitude of a fearless people. It sounded more like a Chinese chamber of commerce discussing the deal they would have to make with bandits to save their city. We are becoming accustomed to fear.

Of course, the bomb is a frightful agent and we invented and produced it as an instrument of war. Then it was stolen from us not only by Dr. Klaus Fuchs but by as disgusting a crew of traitors as ever shamed our land. Those whom we have caught are the little fellows who always get caught; they worked for somebody who has not been caught. And the great officials and the Senate watchdog committee, headed by Senator Brien McMahon, who should have shouted the news of the theft from the housetops, tried to keep it all secret from their employers, the American people.

So now our enemies have the bomb and we are organizing to take the consequences should they use it against us.

But it all seems so unnecessary. We have recently fought two wars to end all this; yet, it seems only to have started. So far as most Americans are concerned, those wars were distant and, unless one lost a son, remote from our homes and families. But this thing is right here at home and we are organizing for it. We hold meetings and appoint committees.

In contrast, let me quote from the new magazine, "The Freeman":

". . . Who helped to create the enormous power that now threatens to destroy us? Who sent Stalin $11,000,000,000 of lend-lease, including tanks, planes, ships, munitions, entire war factories—without daring to ask a single condition in return?

"Who made the shocking agreements of Yalta, Teheran, and Potsdam? Who vetoed the wartime proposal to send British and American troops into the Balkans? Who permitted and encouraged Stalin to take over Estonia, Latvia, Lithuania, Rumania, Bulgaria, Hungary, Czechoslovakia, Poland? Who—both by omission and commission—helped to turn China over to the Communists? Who tried to force Chiang Kai-Shek to take into his government the very communists who were determined to destroy him? Who was so eager to 'share' the secret of the atomic bomb with Stalin? Who proposed that we pour still more billions of the American taxpayers' money into Russia, on the argument that it would appease Stalin if we enabled him to build up his military machine still further? Who allowed our federal departments to be infiltrated with Communist spies who turned our military secrets over to Russia? Who ridiculed as a 'red herring' all serious efforts to uncover these spies?. . ."

When you sit in meetings to discuss the day of doom—ask, "who?" "who?" "who!"

Ahead With Television

There ought now to be no further governmental obstacle to the extension of television to the rest of the nation. The licensing of new stations has been held up pending the end of the long wrangle over color television; that now has been ended as far as the Federal Communications Commission is concerned. It can now turn its attention back to the matter of new station licenses.

Action may not be immediate, however. The FCC choice of a color system upsets, among other things, the present plan of channel allocations. There might be nothing to prevent the immediate issuance of such licenses as may be accomodated in the present band, since it probably will be reserved for black-and-white service. But it may be too much to expect that such a procedure will be followed while the FCC wrestles with channel allocations in the higher band in which expansion is to take place.

Receiver manufacturers estimate that television broadcasts now are available to about sixty per cent of the population. The distribution is in a crazy-quilt pattern with no rhyme or reason because the issuance of licenses was simply frozen where it happened to be at the moment two years ago when the FCC decided to consider additional channel allocations. If present available channels were put to full use television on present standards could be made available everywhere. Development of cables and radio relay systems is taking chain programs to a rapidly spreading area. The impact which television has had on sixty per cent of the population may soon be felt by the rest.

As to color, the present situation does not justify a prediction of speedy development. The industry is far from persuaded that the color system approved by the FCC is the one which will prevail. A substantial audience for color broadcasts seems far in the future, and until there is an audience commercial development also will lack radio's next most vital participant —the sponsor.

Little Man Will Pay

One of the toughest problems the administration faces is to discover the source of $10,000,000,000 in new taxes to finance the defense program. Congress wrestled with the problem up to the minute of adjournment without finding the solution.

Many of the government planners are looking in the direction of excess profits levies, in an effort to give the impression to millions of voters that profits taxes are paid by the so-called rich and do not come out of the pockets of the "people."

All realistic facts in business disprove that claim. When a corporation makes its plans and arranges its cost sheets and other details of operation necessary to survival, it lists taxes as one of the principal items. Taxes are not paid out of some mythical surplus funds, but are lumped with other items of cost and added to the selling price of the commodity, to be paid ultimately by the consumer. These taxes are no less real because they may be invisible to many eyes.

Whatever new levies are made will affect the little man regardless of the form they may take. Because revenue can be obtained quickly and directly from people of small means, through deductions from incomes, the bulk will continue to come from that source.

A more realistic method of financing the preparedness program would be to eliminate needless waste, which continues to suck billions of dollars down a political rathole.

The Loafer Problem

While the government is scurrying about trying to find enough men to meet military quotas without disrupting the nation's economy, and industry is seeking more workers, both are discovering the unpleasant fact that the ranks of the loafers have not diminished through the years.

In fact, under present governmental practices, aided by the benefits of social welfare, the number of malingerers has increased.

Workers are needed on the farms and in the factories, yet there is no response from men to be found in every community who seem to have no visible means of support, and who spend their time in idleness.

Frequently the comment is heard: "Put 'em in the Army." But loafers are no more useful in the Army than in civilian jobs. The loafer is a total loss in any field of endeavor. He has no training in any skill, he accepts no responsibility for his personal welfare and is simply an encumbrance on the fringe of society, existing upon the labor of others.

Many find security under the liberal provisions of social welfare. Unemployment rolls probably contain the names of many who exploit that setup for unjustified handouts. These remain the human debris in the current of life, of no use to themselves or to the communities burdened with them.

Mr. Mack Retires

It is not difficult to realize that it was hard for Connie Mack to decide to retire as manager of the Philadelphia Athletics. He organized this big league baseball team 50 years ago and has been running it ever since. With it he won nine pennants and five world championships.

In its ranks and under his direction have been some of the greatest players of all time. But it is better for him and the team that the separation should come now. There is a tremendous rebuilding job to be done in Philadelphia and, in the exacting and highly competitive sport of baseball, this is no task for an old man.

Mr. Mack always has been a credit to baseball. To him the followers of the sport everywhere owe a debt of gratitude.

Sh! You'll Wake The Baby

NOISE is nerve wracking and is a terrible price to pay for our present civilization. But the situation is not hopeless and if all of us were willing to cooperate by creating less din, our communities would be far more pleasant to live in. Improvements along this line require attention to details at home, at work, and on the road.

The individual is responsible for much of the everyday racket. This cannot be appreciated unless we attempt to analyze the source of the hubbub. Mrs. Brown, for example, contributes because she talks loud enough to be heard in four counties. Her family plays the radio, phonograf, or television at full blast as if they had to supply music for the entire neighborhood. Roger is a nice kid but we all wish he would get the muffler on his hotrod repaired and stop racing his motor to impress others with its power.

And there is the fellow whose motor needs tuning so that the engine won't backfire. We can hear him a mile away when he halts at the stop sign on Main Street. He should get his brakes repaired since squealing is for pigs and not machines. Needless horn blowing is another pet peeve. The boy who gives a toot or two when he leaves his friends is only half as annoying as the jerk who leans on his horn to signal his arrival because he is too lazy to get out and ring the doorbell. These drivers also prefer the horn to their brakes and, instead of slowing down or stopping, honk for everyone to get out of their way. Blaring radios from parked cars at night also prove disturbing, as well as the chatter and harmonizing of convivial late homecomers. Individually the man, woman, or child may not be making much noise but when the sounds are multiplied the total assumes alarming proportions.

Factories, business offices, and transportation facilities also contribute to the din. But this too can be reduced provided each group decides to do something about it. Sound absorbent building material is probably the most effective weapon we have. Soundproofing the walls and ceilings will trap sound waves instead of permitting them to be reflected. Covering the floors with cork or a similar substance also of value.

Isolating machinery by the use of resilient or felt pads helps to eliminate noise that stems from structural vibrations. Obviously, this would be expensive to build into old and well established plants but should be considered when new equipment or replacement of worn and obsolete machinery is needed. In addition, hand and motor trucks that carry materials indoor should be equipped with rubber tires.

If noise cannot be reduced the workers will benefit from the use of ear stoppers. Ordinary cotton mixed with petroleum jelly will shut out from 15 to 20 decibels of sound. This helps considerably because many studies have proved that excessive noise has a deleterious effect on the health and working ability of the employe. Furthermore, the amount of money paid for noise in terms of health, comfort, and efficiency is amply described in the slogan, "A dollar a noise."

TOMORROW: Adequate lighting in schoolrooms, offices, and factories.

BUSY DAYS FOR THE LIFEGUARD

The Washington Merry-Go-Round

Long-Range View Of Politics Often Clarifying; Big-Money Boys' Political Influence Decried; Merry-Go-Round Revealed Hanley-Dewey Story Months Ago

Says DREW PEARSON

PORTLAND, Ore. — Sometimes politics looks a little clearer when you get off and take a long-range view of it.

At any rate, I have been taking a bird's-eye view of all the rumpus kicked up in New York over the question of how Governor Dewey inveigled, enticed or "bribed" Lt. Gov. Joe Hanley out of the governorship race. And it seems to me that my colleagues of the press back East are missing a big part of the story.

The story really began about the last week in August when Winthrop Aldrich of the Chase National Bank telephone his brother-in-law, John D. Rockefeller Jr., at Bar Harbor, Maine, asking his help in getting Lt. Gov. Hanley out of the race for governor. This was before Dewey got into the picture.

And the moral to the whole story is that when you get the big-money boys into politics something always smells.

The story is all in the back files of the Washington Merry-Go-Round and since the politicos are still gasping for breath over it maybe the details are worth retelling now.

The story began last August 31 as follows: "Powerfull efforts were made over the weekend to persuade Lt. Gov. Joe Hanley to withdraw from the race for governor in favor of Tom Dewey.

"Winthrop Aldrich, head of the Chase bank, conferred in Bar Harbor with his brother-in-law, John D. Rockefeller, and together they telephoned Roy Howard, head of the Scripps-Howard newspapers and a powerful Dewey backer. They also phoned Frank Gannett, head of the Ganett newspaper chain and asked him to come to New York immediately. Gannett was reached on his yacht on Lake Ontario and flew to New York in his private plane for lunch with Aldrich. With him went Carl Hallennauer of the Bausch and Lomb Optical Company. Meanwhile, Roy Howard promised to write an editorial in the New York World-Telegram urging that Governor Dewey be drafted for a third term."

In other words the Wall Street boys, not Tom Dewey, made the first move to entice Hanley out of the running. Publisher Gannett incidentally would not go along. Though he lunched with Aldrich at the Chase bank, he refused to plump for Dewey.

Next chapter in this political story was told in the Merry-Go-Round on September 8 as follows:

"Deweyite pressure on Lt. Gov. Joe Hanley to withdraw from the New York gubernatorial race was so intense Friday night that for a time Hanley lost the use of his one good eye."

In his now famous letter to Kingsland Macy telling of the financial guarantees made him, Hanley also tells how he is fearful of going blind.

"Seventy-four years old, Hanley has one glass eye while the other eye is not strong," the Merry-Go-Round continued. "Therefore, when subjected to terrific pressure to withdraw in favor of Dewey he lost his sight completely. On the Saturday and Sunday following the visit with Dewey's friends, Hanley was not able to recognize anyone except by voice.

"On Monday sufficient rest had restored his vision. During the conference with Dewey and friends neither Frank Gannett nor Norman Gould of the Gould Pump Co. were unable to reach him. It was they who helped raise the kitty to pay up Hanley's $30,000 debts but even they could not get to their man during the crucial conference which 'drafted' Dewey. Most interesting fact was that Dewey was anything but drafted."

Third chapter was the actual terms of the pay-off to Hanley to run for the U. S. Senate instead of governor. This was published in the Washington Merry-Go-Round September 13, namely, that Hanley, if defeated for the Senate, would be appointed to the New York Thruway Commission at $15,000 and also be made vice president of an oil company at $15,000 annually.

"Friends in the Dewey camp have also promised to repay the $30,000 which Kingsland Macy, Frank Gannett and Norman Gould put up to pay off Hanley's debts" quoted W.M.G.R. on September 13.

However, the full story of Hanley and Dewey goes back even further, to when Governor Dewey conducted a grand jury investigation of Lt. Gov. Hanley and other Albany legislators—then suddenly called off the grand jury. Since then Dewey and Hanley have been friends only on the surface. Since then also Hanley has been struggling to pay off his indebtedness. The facts were never published in the New York newspapers but here is the account carried in the Merry-Go-Round six years ago—Oct. 31, 1944.

"An Albany grand jury was scheduled to probe a charge that Lieutenant Governor Hanley put his son on the state payroll and then drew most of the salary paid to his son. Any such violation would be a violation of New York State law.

"This column interviewed Hanley and he admitted that his son Jim had been employed as an attorney for Meach, Harmon, Lytell, Blackmore and Biff, an accounting firm, from April 1, 1939 to July 1, 1939 while the firm was installing a new system of budgeting costs for New York alone. During that brief period young Hanley received $3,000. Of that amount $2,000 turned up in the bank account of his father.

"I didn't know the money had been put in my account," Hanley told this column, "until I went to the bank to arrange a loan and they told me I didn't need to borrow any money since my son had deposited some to my account."

However, just as Governor Dewey began to strike pay dirt through his grand jury in Albany suddenly he called off the dogs. The grand jury proceedings were suspended. Likewise suspended in mid-air was an armed truce between the governor of New York and his lieutenant government.

And the only thing that has brought them together has been the stark necessity of putting up a united front re the incriminating Hanley letter or else sinking individually.

MATTER OF FACT

By JOSEPH ALSOP

Taft At The Hustings

VERSAILLES, OHIO

THE energy and endurance displayed by the sixty-two-year old Senator Robert A. Taft in his campaign for re-election must be seen to be believed. The hour Taft spent in this small, pleasant, rural town in southwestern Ohio gives some idea of the sort of campaign Taft is waging, all day, every day.

The first thing you see as you enter the town is a large truck, patriotically draped in red, white and blue, drawn up in front of the main square. Gathered around the truck are perhaps two hundred and fifty people: students from the local schools, looking self-consciously serious; the high school band, magnificent in scarlet costumes; local businessmen (many of whom look as though they might be the candidate's brother), and their wives; well-fed farmers from the flat rich land round about.

As Taft appears, in the back seat of the open light blue limousine of a local Republican bigwig, there is a little whisper of interest, and some desultory clapping. There is nothing in the scene to suggest that great issues depend on the fate of this particular candidate—the future course of the Republican party, the direction of American foreign policy, see the success or failure of the Truman administration's alliance with organized labor, perhaps even the identity of the next President.

The scene suggests, instead, a cheerful Sunday school outing, presided over by a rather irascible schoolmaster. Here, as in the United States Senate, there is between Senator Taft and his audience something of the relationship between teacher and taught. Taft mounts the truck, removes the wilted grey felt hat which appears to have been worn, and sat on, by generations of Tafts, and looks about him. You get the feeling that he is not going to take any nonsense from his pupils. Then Taft smlies.

Angry Man

It is the charming smile of an essential shy man who does not smile easily. But it is the last smile his audience gets. There are no jokes, no casual chitchat in the speech which follows. It is a formal set speech, and a long one—too long, indeed, for a standing audience, and there are signs of restlessness before it ends. Yet on the whole, the people of Versailles listen attentively.

Senator Taft is no great shakes as an orator. But an audience will always listen to an angry man, and Senator Taft is clearly a very angry man indeed. When he has finished, there is certainly no wild excitement, but there is obviously sympathy and even some enthusiasm. With a rather limp hand, Taft acknowledges the clapping, and he is off to make much the same speech all over again, in the tiny town of Russia, some miles away.

For ten weeks now, this scene has been repeated with minor variations, nine or ten times a day. With November 7 looming near, Taft is now making as many as fourteen speeches in a single day, exhausting whole platoons of assistants and reporters. And the astonishing energy of Taft's campaign—for which even his enemies admire him—has its significance. For Taft is "running scared."

There is one thing on which Taft and his mortal enemies, the labor leaders, agree. To balance the anti-Taft majority in the industrial centers, Taft must hold close to sixty percent of the predominantly Republican rural vote—and above all, the rural voters must be persuaded to go to the polls. This explains why Taft plans to campaign in every crossroad's hamlet in Ohio before Election Day.

No one in Ohio is making any predictions about the outcome of this election—the most crucial off-year election in many years. But one of Taft's major hurdles is physically evident to the senses in this part of southwestern Ohio.

Taft Strategy Explained

For here in this flat fertile land you can see—you can almost smell—prosperity. By all the rules, this is Republican territory, here where almost no one is very rich and almost no one is very poor and almost everyone is reasonably comfortable. But equally by all the rules, when people are satisfied with things as they are, they are not willing to go to very much trouble to kick the rascals out—the rascals in this case being the Truman administration.

This in turn explains Taft's campaign strategy, as revealed in the speeches he has been making in hundreds of towns like Versailles. For Taft concentrates not on the prosperous present, but on an awful

Investigation Of Korean Debacle Soon Is Possible

By DAVID LAWRENCE

WASHINGTON, Oct. 23 — When the elections are over and Congress reconvenes, there may be an investigation of the debacle in Korea.

For while the United Nations forces have been victorious and there has been brilliant maneuvering by all three of our armed services, the fact remains that more than 25,000 casualties have been incurred—many of them needlessly.

Among the politicians and some of the apologists for the administration, especially during a political campaign, the emphasis is placed on the victories and there is a deliberate tendency to try to make the people forget what happened before June 25th, when the Korean war broke out.

Louis Johnson has been made the goat for the mistakes that led up to the debacle in Korea but he took the advice of the U. S. Joint Chiefs of Staff whose two-to-one vote sent virtually the entire American Navy into mothballs and grounded the U. S. Marines 8,000 miles away from the trouble areas of the Far East.

The United States Navy's fleet in being scuttled and despite the hurry-up moves to get a semblance of a fleet into commission for the Korean affair, the fact remains today that, as a consequence of requirements in Korea the United States has no fighting fleet in the Atlantic and a mere fragment of a fleet in the Mediterranean.

Who was responsible for scuttling the fleet in being? This is a vital question for the future because the reasons why two members of the U. S. Joint Chiefs of Staff voted as they did to advise Secretary Johnson to curtail these services have never been revealed. This does not involve military secrets—certainly not now. It involves blunders in judgment that should not be hushed up.

The mothers and fathers and the families of the thousands killed in Korea and of the many more thousands missing and probably dead and of the many thousands condemned to spend the rest of their lives as invalids get small comfort out of the tendency to gloss over the mistakes made. They are entitled to the assurance that the sacrifices were not in vain and that the lessons taught by the blunders prior to June 25th have been taken to heart and that punishment will be neted out to those responsible for the blunders.

Specifically the American people are entitled to the assurance that the men who made America's military policy and made such a mess of it before June 25th are no longer in a position now to influence military policy.

The biggest mistake of all those made before the Korean war broke out was made by those army and air force spokesmen who spread the falsehood that the navy or the marine corps opposed unification. On the basis of that outcry the navy was punished and the air wings of the marine corps almost entirely abolished.

The navy always has and always will favor integration. That's exactly what the so-called unification law provides and what Chairman Vinson of the House Armed Services committee and a unanimous committee behind him favors. Integration means letting each service retain its specializations and functions as outlined in the law subject only to over-all budget limitations. "Unification" thus far has meant allowing the heads to two armed services to decide what appropriations the third shall have.

The U. S. Air Force as an independent service has come to stay. Its main function is strategic bombing. It no longer has to justify its right to independence. But the Korean war shows plainly that the air force blundered in failing to set up enough units to work constantly with ground forces. The army once had its own tactical units. If within the independent air force a sizable tactical air command—to work flexibly with ground troop divisions—is to be set up as planned now, the question then arises why this wasn't done before Korea and who was responsible for failing to provide the ground troops with the tactical air units they require, especially for night flying and varying weather conditions. It is superficial argument to say, as General Stratemeyer of the air force said in Tokyo recently, that America cannot plan its military policy hereafter on what happened in Korea because the enemy had virtually no air force there. The truth is that "model" war conditions never occur and that the United States must plan its military policy to meet all kinds of conditions and particularly must have in mind that the Pacific Ocean as well as European waters will be sources of potential trouble for decades to come.

Twenty-five thousand casualties is a lot of casualties for a so-called local war. The Inchon landing won the victory but unless some committee of Congress finds out why there was no fleet or equipment in the Pacific in readiness to make amphibious landings not in 90 days, but instantly ,especially in a waterbound area like Korea, the true reasons for the Korean debacle will never be revealed to the American people. If the building up of adequate armament is the deterrent to aggression that is claimed for it nowadays, then the presence of adequate air, army and navy strength in the Far East ready to fight could perhaps have prevented the Korean war altogether.

These Days

By GEORGE E. SOKOLSKY

The Shadow Of Fear

I do not believe that I quite realized what the wars we have been in and the atom bomb have done to us until I attended a meeting of the Board of Trade of Washington, D. C. and listened to a calm businesslike discussion of preparations for the day of doom.

It was all in the American manner. Brigadier General Gordon R. Young, one of the commissioners of the capital city of our nation, without dramatics of any kind, read of the plans, the present accomplishments, the proposals for the future, the committees appointed and to be appointed. Then some of the committee chairmen were called upon to rise and take a bow and there was applause.

Curiously, just before he spoke, a small boy appealed for the boys' club and an active young man made a thrilling campaign for the Community Chest, for charity and pity, for mutual aid within the community. Then came the preparations for doom.

This is stark reality. Never before in our history have Americans organized in despair over their own fate. We have organized to aid others in distress, to care for the victims of floods and earthquakes, to provide food for the sufferers of droughts or for the wounded in war or for little children who were starving. Ours has always been a charitable nation, sharing our surplus with others.

But this is something altogether different, and its business-like character, the calmness of recital, the attention of the audience to the multitude of detail—here is something really frightening. It is an alteration in the attitude of a fearless people. It sounded more like a Chinese chamber of commerce discussing the deal they would have to make with bandits to save their city. We are becoming accustomed to fear.

Of course, the bomb is a frightful agent and we invented and produced it as an instrument of war. Then it was stolen from us not only by Dr. Klaus Fuchs but by as disgusting a crew of traitors as ever shamed our land. Those whom we have caught are the little fellows who always get caught; they worked for somebody who has not been caught. And the great officials and the Senate watchdog committee, headed by Senator Brien McMahon, who should have shouted the news of the theft from the housetops, tried to keep it all secret from their employers, the American people.

So now our enemies have the bomb and we are organizing to take the consequences should they use it against us.

But it all seems so unnecessary. We have recently fought two wars to end all this; yet, it seems only to have started. So far as most Americans are concerned, those wars were distant and, unless one lost a son, remote from our homes and families. But this thing is right here at home and we are organizing for it. We hold meetings and appoint committees.

In contrast, let me quote from the new magazine, "The Freeman":

". . . Who helped to create the enormous power that now threatens to destroy us? Who sent Stalin $11,000,000,000 of lend-lease, including tanks, planes, ships, munitions, entire war factories—without daring to ask a single condition in return?

"Who made the shocking agreements of Yalta, Teheran, and Potsdam? Who vetoed the wartime proposal to send British and American troops into the Balkans? Who permitted and encouraged Stalin to take over Estonia, Latvia, Lithuania, Rumania, Bulgaria, Hungary, Czechoslovakia, Poland? Who—both by omission and commission—helped to turn China over to the Communists? Who tried to force Chiang Kai-Shek to take into his government the very communists who were determined to destroy him? Who was so eager to 'share' the secret of the atomic bomb with Stalin? Who proposed that we pour still more billions of the American taxpayers' money into Russia, on the argument that it would appease Stalin if we enabled him to build up his military machine still further? Who allowed our federal departments to be infiltrated with Communist spies who turned our military secrets over to Russia? Who ridiculed as a 'red herring' all serious efforts to uncover these spies?. . ."

When you sit in meetings to discuss the day of doom—ask, "who?" "who?" "who!"

John Maragon's Appeal Rejected

WASHINGTON, Oct. 23 (AP)—The perjury conviction of John Maragon, one-time White House intimate, was upheld today by the U. S. Court of Appeals.

The court affirmed the conviction of the former Kansas City shoe shine boy on two counts:

That he lied to U. S. Senate investigators by saying he had only a Washington bank account when he also had one in San Antonio, Tex.

That he also perjured himself by telling the investigators he had quit working for a Chicago perfumery company when he took a temporary State Department job with a mission observing elections in Greece.

Maragon was convicted in District Court here last April and was sentenced to spend eight months to two years in jail. He is free on $5,000 bond. His attorney, Irvin Goldstein, said he will study the Appeals Court decision before deciding whether to carry the case to the Supreme Court.

McKeldin Hits Lane's "Deals, Double Deals"

BALTIMORE, Oct. 23 (AP)—Theodore R. McKeldin declared tonight that Gov. Lane's "deals and double deals" and his "maneuvers have very definitely disgusted every decent person in this state."

McKeldin is Lane's Republican opponent in the November 17 election.

He referred in a radio-television address to the factional fight in progress among Baltimore City Democrats and Gov. Lane's part in it.

The city's Democratic State Central Committee named Leroy Shaughnessy as the party's candidate for register of wills here. Lane, in a move for party harmony, had suggested the name of another man.

After the Shaughnessy nomination, Lane dismissed a police magistrate allied with James (Jack) Pollack, a city district leader who was said to have helped engineer the Shaughnessy nomination.

Owner Abandons Hope For Coon Dog Trapped In Cave

BEDFORD, Ind., Oct. 23 (AP)—"Old Bob" has chased his last coon. At least his owner, Lawrence Clark, fears he has.

Since "Old Bob," a 7-year-old blue tick coon dog, became trapped in a cave on a rugged hillside five miles southeast of Bedford last Tuesday night, Clark and scores of helpers have been seeking to get him out.

Over the weekend a valiant effort was made by Jack Houchin of Mitchell, a former miner, but this afternoon he crawled scratched and shivering from the narrow inlet into the cave. He said he called to the dog and got no answering bark or even a whine.

Finnish Police Seek Scientist

LONDON, Oct. 23 (AP)—Finland's security police were ordered today to scour the country for Britain's missing atom scientist, Dr. Bruno Pontecorvo, and the British House of Commons began a debate on the man who admittedly might have atom secrets of value to an enemy.

Reports, still unconfirmed, in Rome's newspapers said the Italian-born scientist who worked in the British atomic research plant at Harwell skipped to Russia with his wife and three children during a leave of absence.

Pontecorvo and his family virtually have evaporated into thin air since they were last seen Sept. 2 as they landed at the Finnish capital of Helsinki aboard a Swedish airlines plane.

The Stockholm correspondent for Rome's influential Il Tempo reported that the Pontecorvo family had sailed Sept. 2 aboard a Russian ship from Finland to Leningrad.

But Finnish authorities say if he did leave the country he did so illegally because they are still holding his passport.

Polish Mt. 4-H Invited To Party

The Polish Mountain 4-H Girls Club received an invitation and held a program at the meeting yesterday afternoon at the home of Virginia Lee Shipaway, Green Ridge.

Mrs. Nola Smith, leader, invited the girls to the Halloween party the Polish Mountain Homemakers Club will have November 4. It is to be held at the club house at 7:30 and each is to come in costume.

After the recitation of the 4-H pledge in unison, roll call was answered by ways to prevent fire hazards. Some of the suggestions included not leaving an oily dust cloth lying around, keeping the chimney clean, being sure the fire is out after a campfire, starting a fire with kindling wood instead of kerosene, and keeping matches out of reach of children.

A conservation program was held in connection with Conservation Week. Plans were formulated for conserving the national resources, including building bird houses, which are to be finished and judged at the next meeting; putting food out for the birds; and one member will start an acre of Christmas trees as a forest project.

National poetry week was observed with recitations, Virginia Lee giving "September" and "Golden Key;" Eleanor, "October," and Mrs. Smith, "The West Wind." The latter also told a story, "On Being Still."

A recreation period followed. Refreshments were served and the meeting closed with group singing.

MODERN FABRIC MAGIC IS BEING ACCOMPLISHED AT STATELY OLD MANSION ON THE HUDSON RIVER

By DOROTHY ROE
Associated Press Fashion Editor

OSSINING, N. Y. — George and Vera Neumann live in an ancient stately mansion overlooking the wide blue waters of the Hudson.

Three of the 40-odd rooms of the mansion have been converted into a modern apartment. The rest of it houses the Neumann fabric printing plant, turning out an endless stream of modern decorative fabrics, wallpapers and hand-screened silk scarfs.

Small, red-headed Vera does the designing, taking her inspiration from the leaves, the ferns and the wildflowers that cover the hills along the Hudson. Large, amiable George is the technical and color expert, inheriting his skill from forbears who owned one of Europe's most famous fabric mills, in Vienna, up to the time of World War II.

Together they form a team that is making fabric design history throughout the country. And their methods are still the Old World hand processes that have been handed down from generation to generation since the days of ancient China.

Vera is strictly American, a free-lance artist from Stamford, Conn., at the time she met George a few years ago. After their marriage they set up business in a New York loft for a time, quickly expanded to more fashionable quarters, and a year or so ago bought the rambling old mansion where they now live and work.

Absorbed in Americana, Vera believes that our country offers an endless source of design material. Her current scarf collection takes its inspiration from Colonial America and the old South. The previous one concentrated on Cape Cod colors, themes and traditions. For future collections she plans to draw on the historic Mississippi, the colorful West, the traditions of the lumber country of the Northwest—the regional themes to be found through the length and breadth of America.

In the Neumann household, Vera works in her bright, airy design studio, where specimens of leaves, ferns, branches and berries are mounted on a bulletin board, and where her long-haired dachshund, Svicki, and her Maltese cat, Josie, sit on her drawing board and watch.

The design is first drawn on paper, then transferred to film or traced directly on the silk screen, which is made by stretching the finest quality of Swiss silk on a wood frame. A separate screen must be made for each color to be used in the design. If the film method is used, the completed design is then photographed on the sensitized silk. When immersed in a tank of water, the design areas are left clear, the rest coated with an opaque film.

If painted directly on the screen, each color must be blocked out on a separate screen.

When completed, the screens go to the printing rooms, where lengths of fabric are stretched on tables 40 yards long. Workmen fill the screens with paint and transfer the design by setting the screen on the cloth and working a squeegee inside the frame. Sometimes as many as seven colors are used in one scarf, necessitating seven separate screen operations.

The lengths of fabric are then dried, washed to remove stiffness, dried again and sent to Porto Rico for hand hemming (in the case of scarfs).

Vera and George personally supervise each operation, claim their plant is unique because the entire process, from design to finished fabric, is under one roof.

A woman must be sure of herself to dance like a dream. Here are the steps that will give you that assurance!

SECRETS OF CHARM

by JOHN ROBERT POWERS

WHEN the most promising belle at the party turns into a retiring wallflower on the first note of a rhumba . . . or the popular matron stolidly decides to "sit this one out," you know in a second, and so does the beaux line, that the lady's sudden attack of shyness results from her doubts about her ability to perform!

These are not the actions of the come-hither girls. They have made a point of substituting assurance for shyness by overcoming any personal faults that diminish their inner poise. In the case of your willowy ability on the dance floor, it's so very easy to do.

Assurance in Dancing

Begin by selling yourself the idea that steps in ballroom dancing are merely rhymthic improvisations on the steps you take when you walk. Believe me, if you can walk gracefully and rhythmically, you will be able to dance like a dream.

Try this experiment and you will see what I mean: turn on some dance music and begin to walk on the beat. For a fox trot, make your steps keen and sprightly; for a waltz slower, longer and smoother; for Latin tunes, shorter and syncopated. Stick at it until you have trained your ear and body to respond to all the various rhythms. Incidentally, you'll gain an added control over your walk as well as your dancing.

When you feel that you've mastered all the rhythmic patterns, start working on this routine: with your feet together and your arms raised in dancing positions as if you had a partner, (1) slide the right foot to the right. (2) slide the left foot into place beside the right foot. (3) now repeat the right slide one more and hesitate for the beat.

Never A Wooden Doll

(4) Slide your left foot to the left for two steps and hesitate. (5) take three glides forward and hesitate. (6) glide three steps back and hesitate. (7) repeat the entire routine until the music is ended.

Practice the above to all the current dance rhythms, being sure to keep your feet on the floor and move them in a smooth glide. Next time you get on a dance floor, you will be able to follow your partner's lead in a relaxed fashion. You won't want for one, either!

Fleet Argo Cops Laurel Main Event

Arnold Kirkland Is Aboard Victor

LAUREL, Md., Oct. 23 (AP)—Fleet Argo, the even money favorite, lasted in the stretch drive to win the $4,000 Congressional Purse by a half length here in sloppy going today.

Lotus Blossom, charging from far back, wrested second from Ensa which led nearly the entire six furlongs.

The winner, ridden by Arnold Kirkland, paid $4.20, $2.60 and $2.40 across the board. The time was 1.13 3/5 for the six furlongs.

Ensa sprinted into a long early lead but yielded to Fleet Argo in the stretch drive as Kirkland rated his mount perfectly. Lotus Blossom rallied from far out of it and may have won if the race had been a bit longer.

Despite rain and dreary weather conditions a crowd of 8,154 turned out for the Monday program.

Tomorrow will be a dark day at Laurel but the meeting will resume on Wednesday.

DEEP BLUE SCORES

JAMAICA, L. I., Oct. 23 (AP)—B. F. Whitaker's Deep Blue took the lead soon after the start and held on gamely to win the featured First Fiddle Classified Handicap at a mile and a sixteenth at Jamaica race track today.

The gelded 3-year-old son of Ocean Wave-Miss Min, handled by Ted Atkinson, won by a length over the fast-closing Royal Castle, race favorite. The latter was four lengths to the good of Big If, who finished seven lengthes ahead of Splash, the only other starter.

Second choice in the wagering, with the 17,360 fans Deep Blue returned mutuels of $5.00 and $2.40. Royal Castle paid $2.40 to place. There was no show wagering.

WINNER PAYS $10.80

SALEM, N. H., Oct. 23 (AP) — Philip Schwartz's Nor'west fought off a stretch drive by Ralph Lowe's favored Regal, for a nose victory in today's featured De Kalb Purse at Rockingham Park.

William T. Fugate's Mr. Dink was third, two and a half lengths back in the photo finish of the mile and sixteenth event.

Rain and cold held the attendance to 5,298.

Nor'west paid $10.80, $4.20 and $3.20 after being timed at 1:46. Regal returned $3.20 and $3.00 and Mr. Dink $4.00.

Lonaconing Briefs

MODERN FABRIC MAGIC IS BEING ACCOMPLISHED AT STATELY OLD MANSION ON THE HUDSON RIVER

© 1950 by John F. Dille Co.

A woman must be sure of herself to dance like a dream. Here are the steps that will give you that assurance!

SECRETS OF CHARM

by JOHN ROBERT POWERS

By DOROTHY ROE
Associated Press Fashion Editor

OSSINING, N. Y. — George and Vera Neumann live in an ancient stately mansion overlooking the wide blue waters of the Hudson.

Three of the 40-odd rooms of the mansion have been converted into a modern apartment. The rest of it houses the Neumann fabric printing plant, turning out an endless stream of modern decorative fabrics, wallpapers and hand-screened silk scarfs.

Small, red-headed Vera does the designing, taking her inspiration from the leaves, the ferns and the wildflowers that cover the hills along the Hudson. Large, amiable George is the technical and color expert, inheriting his skill from forbears who owned one of Europe's most famous fabric mills, in Vienna, up to the time of World War II.

Together they form a team that is making fabric design history throughout the country. And their methods are still the Old World hand processes that have been handed down from generation to generation since the days of ancient China.

Vera is strictly American, a free-lance artist from Stamford, Conn., at the time she met George a few years ago. After their marriage they set up business in a New York loft for a time, quickly expanded to more fashionable quarters, and a year or so ago bought the rambling old mansion where they now live and work.

Absorbed in Americana, Vera believes that our country offers an endless source of design material. Her current scarf collection takes its inspiration from Colonial America and the old South. The previous one concentrated on Cape Cod colors, themes and traditions. For future collections she plans to draw on the historic Mississippi, the colorful West, the traditions of the lumber country of the Northwest—the regional themes to be found through the length and breadth of America.

In the Neumann household, Vera works in her bright, airy design studio, where specimens of leaves, ferns, branches and berries are mounted on a bulletin board, and where her long-haired dachshund, Svicki, and her Maltese cat, Josie, sit on her drawing board and watch.

The design is first drawn on paper, then transferred to film or traced directly on the silk screen, which is made by stretching the finest quality of Swiss silk on a wood frame. A separate screen must be made for each color to be used in the design. If the film method is used, the completed design is then photographed on the sensitized silk. When immersed in a tank of water, the design areas are left clear, the rest coated with an opaque film.

If painted directly on the screen, each color must be blocked out on a separate screen.

When completed, the screens go to the printing rooms, where lengths of fabric are stretched on tables 40 yards long. Workmen fill the screens with paint and transfer the design by setting the screen on the cloth and working a squeegee inside the frame. Sometimes as many as seven colors are used in one scarf, necessitating seven separate screen operations.

The lengths of fabric are then dried, washed to remove stiffness, dried again and sent to Porto Rico for hand hemming (in the case of scarfs).

Vera and George personally supervise each operation, claim their plant is unique because the entire process, from design to finished fabric, is under one roof.

When you feel that you've mastered all the rhythmic patterns, start working on this routine: with your feet together and your arms raised in dancing positions as if you had a partner, (1) slide the right foot to the right. (2) slide the left foot into place beside the right foot. (3) now repeat the right slide one more and hesitate for the beat.

Never A Wooden Doll

(4) Slide your left foot to the left for two steps and hesitate. (5) take three glides forward and hesitate. (6) glide three steps back and hesitate. (7) repeat the entire routine until the music is ended.

Practice the above to all the current dance rhythms, being sure to keep your feet on the floor and move them in a smooth glide. Next time you get on a dance floor, you will be able to follow your partner's lead in a relaxed fashion. You won't want for one, either!

Assurance in Dancing

Begin by selling yourself the idea that steps in ballroom dancing are merely rhymthic improvisations on the steps you take when you walk. Believe me, if you can walk gracefully and rhythmically, you will be able to dance like a dream.

Try this experiment and you will see what I mean: turn on some dance music and begin to walk on the beat. For a fox trot, make your steps keen and sprightly; for a waltz slower, longer and smoother; for Latin tunes, shorter and syncopated. Stick at it until you have trained your ear and body to respond to all the various rhythms. Incidentally, you'll gain an added control over your walk as well as your dancing.

P. S. from J. R. P.:

Fleet Argo Cops Laurel Main Event

Arnold Kirkland Is Aboard Victor

LAUREL, Md., Oct. 23 (AP)—Fleet Argo, the even money favorite, lasted in the stretch drive to win the $4,000 Congressional Purse by a half length here in sloppy going today.

Lotus Blossom, charging from far back, wrested second from Ensa which led nearly the entire six furlongs.

The winner, ridden by Arnold Kirkland, paid $4.20, $2.60 and $2.40 across the board. The time was 1.13 3/5 for the six furlongs.

Ensa sprinted into a long early lead but yielded to Fleet Argo in the stretch drive as Kirkland rated his mount perfectly. Lotus Blossom rallied from far out of it and may have won if the race had been a bit longer.

Despite rain and dreary weather conditions a crowd of 8,154 turned out for the Monday program.

Tomorrow will be a dark day at Laurel but the meeting will resume on Wednesday.

DEEP BLUE SCORES

JAMAICA, L. I., Oct. 23 (AP)—B. F. Whitaker's Deep Blue took the lead soon after the start and held on gamely to win the featured First Fiddle Classified Handicap at a mile and a sixteenth at Jamaica race track today.

The gelded 3-year-old son of Ocean Wave-Miss Min, handled by Ted Atkinson, won by a length over the fast-closing Royal Castle, race favorite. The latter was four lengths to the good of Big If, who finished seven lengthes ahead of Splash, the only other starter.

Second choice in the wagering with the 17,360 fans Deep Blue returned mutuels of $5.00 and $2.40. Royal Castle paid $2.40 to place. There was no show wagering.

WINNER PAYS $10.80

SALEM, N. H., Oct. 23 (AP) — Philip Schwartz's Nor'west fought off a stretch drive by Ralph Lowe's favored Regal, for a nose victory in today's featured De Kalb Purse at Rockingham Park.

William T. Fugate's Mr. Dink was third, two and a half lengths back in the photo finish of the mile and sixteenth event.

Rain and cold held the attendance to 5,298.

Nor'west paid $10.80, $4.20 and $3.20 after being timed at 1:46. Regal returned $3.20 and $3.00 and Mr. Dink $4.00.

Lonaconing Briefs

Flags have been replaced on veterans' graves at the Lonaconing cemeteries by Alvin C. Neat Post No. 5280, Veteran of Foreign Wars. Persons who destroy these flags will be prosecuted by law.

James P. Love Post No. 92, American Legion, will hold a membership party at the end of October to launch their 1951 membership drive.

A Democratic party rally will be held Wednesday, at 8 p. m. in the American Legion home. Candidates in the November 7 election will speak.

Local No. 7768, United Mine Workers of America, will meet Thursday in Odd Fellows Hall.

Southern Methodist Voted Country's No. 1 Grid Team

Mustangs Pass Army Eleven In Weekly Poll

Oklahoma Is Third, Northwestern 9th, 246 Cast Ballots

BY HAROLD CLAASSEN

NEW YORK ,Oct. 23 (AP)—Southern Methodist's unbeaten Mustangs galloped to the top of the standings today in the Associated Press weekly poll to determine the country's No. 1 college football team.

Matty Bell

The Southwest Conference power, which made stubborn Rice its 42 to 21 victim Saturday night, gained 96 first place nominations from the 246 voting sports critics. Army, leader the past two weeks dropped to second despite its 49-0 conquest of Harvard while Oklahoma, the former runner-up, slipped to third, the place formerly held by Southern Methodist.

Kentucky remained in fourth place and the top ten was completed by California, Ohio State, Texas, Tennessee, Northwestern and Cornell in that order.

Maryland Takes Dive

Tennessee, Northwestern and Cornell are newcomers to the present list, replacing Stanford, Maryland and Washington, all of whom were defeated last Saturday.

With Kyle Rote as their big producer, the Mustangs have romped over five opponents from five different circuits. In order, they have defeated Georgia Tech, Ohio State, Missouri, Oklahoma A & M, and Rice. In building their unblemished record, the Texans have scored 184 points to 61 for their opponents. That's an average of 37 to 12 in each game.

Mustangs Are Idle

They are idle this week while preparing for their annual tussle with Texas, seventh in the weekly rankings for the past two weeks.

The voting was the second heaviest in the 15 years of the poll being exceeded only by the 275 votes of last week. Only one ballot listed Notre Dame, former darling of the voters. It was for eighth place and the resultant three points dropped the Irish, beaten last Saturday by Indiana for the second loss this season, into a tie for 39th place with Louisiana State, Yale, Iowa and Virginia.

Indiana, Notre Dame's conqueror, hopped into 19th place on the strength of the victory.

Wildcats Skyrocket

Biggest jump of the tabulation, however, was registered by unbeaten Northwestern. The Wildcats leaped from 20th place a week ago to ninth today on the strength of a 28-23 victory over Pittsburgh. It was the fourth triumph for Northwestern.

Tennessee's climb was almost as sensational. The Volunteers, a preseason favorite for the Southeastern Conference title but licked by Mississippi State, sky-rocketed from 18th to eighth place by nipping Alabama, 14 to 9.

The top teams (figures in brackets indicate first place votes):

TOP TEN	POINTS
1. Southern Methodist (90)	2,071
2. Army (84)	1,981
3. Oklahoma (35)	1,974
4. Kentucky (15)	1,286
5. California (2)	1,223
6. Ohio State (2)	1,121
7. Texas	782
8. Tennessee	345
9. Northwestern	333
10. Cornell	318
SECOND TEN:
11. Miami (Fla) (8)	298
12. Illinois (1)	250
13. Texas A & M	169
14. Michigan	116
15. Michigan State	102
16. Clemson	72
17. Wake Forest	67
18. UCLA	64
19. Indiana	60
20. Florida (1)	54

Washington 53, Princeton 52, Kansas 47, Rice 40, Stanford 32, Wyoming 32, Pennsylvania 30, Maryland 26, Vanderbilt 23, Georgia 17, Nebraska 8, North Carolina 8, West Texas State 7, Loyola of Los Angeles 6, Duke 6, Georgia Tech 4, Alabama 4, Tulane 4, Notre Dame 3, Louisiana State 3, Virginia 3, Yale 3, Iowa 3, Wisconsin 2, Lewis & Clark 2, North Carolina State 1, Washington & Lee 1, South Carolina 1, Wichita 1, Xavier of Cincinnati 1.

Powers Leads Scoring Race

Noyes Thompson (Tommy) Powers of Cumberland is now leading the Southern Conference in scoring with 48 points to his credit.

The former Allegany High ace, now wingback at Duke University, took over the lead Saturday when he registered six touchdowns as the Blue Devils trounced Richmond 41-0.

Fred Cone, Clemson, is second with 36 tallies and Dick Lewis, William & Mary, is third with 35 markers.

Luke Appling May Manage At Memphis

CHICAGO, Oct. 23 (AP) — Luke Appling, whose 2,218 games at shortstop for the White Sox stands as an all-time major league baseball record, may become manager of the club's farm club at Memphis in the Southern Association this week.

Appling is scheduled to meet in Chicago tomorrow or Wednesday with Chuck Comiskey, Sox vice president, and general manager Frank Lane.

Potomac State School is sailing along so nicely on the gridiron that followers of Coach Dana Lough's Catamounts are predicting an undefeated season for the Keyser team.

With six wins already under their belts, the Catamounts can take it all by knocking off George Washington University's "B" team, Salem College and Gaullaudet College in remaining contests.

Three of the P. S. victims to date have been conference teams, namely, Glenville, Shepherd and Concord. Salem is the only conference foe left on the 1950 card.

Three years ago Potomac State annexed conference honors. The 1947 team's over-all record was six wins, one loss and two ties. Lough's men whipped Concord, Morris Harvey, Shepherd, D. & E., Salem and West Virginia Tech and tied West Liberty and Glenville.

The only loss came at the hands of California (Pa.) Teachers College, a non-conference opponent.

We note that players from five different states have figured in Potomac State's scoring this season. Twelve men have had a hand in the scoring of 190 points in six games and they hail from New Jersey, Delaware, Ohio, Pennsylvania and West Virginia.

Theodore (Ted) Lauer of Atlantic Highlands, N.J., heads the list with 53 tallies, including eight touchdowns. Steve Burda, Pittsburgh, is second with 36. Here's the list:

Player	TD	PAT	Pts.
Ted Lauer, At. High, N. J.	8	5	53
Steve Burda, Pittsburgh	6	0	36

Sammy David, former Pitt basketball and baseball star, who scored 258 points in 13 games, an average of 19.9 per game, for Washington (Pa.) last season, is working out with the Altoona Flyers quint.

The Flyers have been drilling with the Pitt and Duquesne U. squads and "Chick" Davies' Homestead High cagers.

Grady Akers, former Gettysburg College player, and Steve Stephanic, ex-Duquesne U. flash are among the candidates.

How would you like to be carrying the ball over the goal line then have it squirt out of your arms into the mitts of an opposing player who dashes 102 yards to a touchdown?

That happened in the Bedford-Conemaugh Township game Friday night at Bedford.

The snatch was made by Capt. Harry Kurtz of Bedford and is a schoolboy record for the tri-state area unless someone can prove that a player made a longer TD run.

Kurtz, incidentally, dashed 55 yards for another score during the thriller in which the Bisons were defeated 20-18 due to an uneducated toe.

Kingwood High in Preston County (W. Va.) needs only one more win to complete an undefeated football season. The Stags have won six straight and meet University High, Morgantown, this week. Kingwood is a Class B school.

Terra Alta has ended its season with a 5-1 record while Rowlesburg closed with a .500 mark of 3-3.

His Washington Redskins have lost four in a row after copping the season opener. And that's a rocky road ahead with the Redskins slated to play five of their seven remaining games on the road.

The Philly Eagles and Cleveland Browns must be met twice each and the New York Giants, Pittsburgh and Baltimore once each. Playing this kind of a schedule is a good way to get your brains knocked out.

Little St. Francis College at Loretto, Pa., the alma mater of a flock of LaSalle grads, will play three basketball games at Johnstown's massive War Memorial Arena during the 1950-51 season. V.P.I. will be met Dec. 5, Creighton on January 2 and Texas Wesleyan, Jan 21.

St. Francis is a member of the Eastern Catholic Intercollegiate Athletic Conference of 11 schools.

Maryland and Duke tangle for the 7th time Saturday at Durham, N. C.

The Terps have never beaten the Blue Devils in football, losing by scores of 34-0, 38-7, 50-0, 42-0 19-7 and 13-12.

Two Cumberlanders are expected to figure prominently in the Saturday game—Tommy Powers and John Alderton.

Bobby Williams, Cumberland native, has completed 48 of 104 passes for 505 yards in spite of the fact that Notre Dame is having an off year.

Johnstown, Pa., the only charter member left in the Middle Atlantic Baseball League which opened in 1925, is seeking affiliation with a major league team for next year.

One year of independent operation was more than enough for the Johnstown directors. Their opinion is that further independent competition is utterly hopeless. And the baseball public, judging by the way the turnstiles didn't click last summer, feels the same way about it.

In the past the Johnnies have been affiliated with the Pirates, Brooklyn and St. Louis Browns.

Cardinals Asked To Pay Medical Bills Of Ford

Deliberate Slugging Charged By Cleveland

CLEVELAND, Oct. 23 (AP)—National Football League officials offered "no comment" today in answer to a Cleveland Browns' move to have the Chicago Cardinals pay the remaining salary and medical bills of an injured Cleveland player.

Arthur (Mickey) McBride, owner of the Browns, said he would ask Commissioner Bert Bell to order the Cards to reimburse the Cleveland club as the result of serious injuries incurred last week by end Len Ford.

Bell said in Philadelphia he would wait until he received the complaint before saying anything.

"After all, I don't know what it's all about," Bell said. "I have to have both sides presented in order to make any decision."

Cardinal President Ray Bennigsen was reported from Chicago to be unexcited about McBride's statement, but he declined comment until he hears from Bell.

Ford suffered a broken nose, fractured cheek bone and jaw, and lost several teeth in the game with the Cardinals.

"Ford was deliberately slugged by Pat Harder of the Cardinals," McBride said. "Motion pictures of the game show our boy was blameless.

"Football is a rough game, and we wouldn't object if a boy were hurt on a legitimate play. But this was different. It not only injured one of our outstanding players, but it jeopardized our chances in the league."

Harder Didn't Use Fists, Lambeau Says

CHICAGO, Oct. 23 (AP)—A hard shoulder block—and not the fists—is what fullback Pat Harder used on end Len Ford of the Cleveland Browns, Coach Curly Lambeau of the Chicago Cardinals said today.

Ford suffered a fractured jaw, cheek bone and nose, and lost several teeth in last week's pro football game with the Cards. Cleveland won 34-24.

Today, Arthur (Mickey) McBride, owner of the Browns, said he will ask Commissioner Bert Bell to order the Cardinals to pay Ford's remaining salary, hospital and medical bills. McBride declared Ford "was deliberately slugged" by Harder.

"In that Cleveland game, Ford slugged anybody who blocked for our ball carrier in sweeping his end," asserted Lambeau. "He hit Ed Bagdon (Cardinal guard) in the mouth and drew a 15-yard penalty for that and he cracked Harder's teeth earlier in the game.

"On the play where Ford was injured, Harder ducked a swing and then hit the end with a hard shoulder block, which is legal."

One Hitter To Vie

NEW YORK, Oct. 23 (AP)—With Hill Prince and Noor off to California, a field of nine or 10 horses appeared certain for the $50,000-added Empire City Gold Cup Saturday at Jamaica.

There is no apparent standout, unless it be Greentree Stable's One Hitter, twice winner over Noor at Belmont Park.

Gavilan Held Even

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Oct. 23 (AP)—Kid Gavilan of Havana, Cuba, was held to a draw by comparatively unknown Tommy Ciarlo of Waterbury in a 10-round feature bout at the New Haven Arena tonight.

Ryba Mentioned For St. Louis Job Vacated By Dyer

ST. LOUIS, Oct. 23 (AP)—The name of Mike Ryba cropped up today in speculation over a possible successor to Eddie Dyer, who bowed out recently as manager of the St. Louis Cardinals.

MIKE RYBA

Ryba last season managed the Boston Red Sox' Louisville, Ky., club.

Reports that he was being considered as a candidate for the Redbird post drifted into St. Louis from Ryba's home town of Springfield, Mo.

Fred Saigh, owner of the Cardinals, said today he talked with Ryba here Oct. 18 about "a possible job" in the St. Louis organization.

Saigh declined to say, however, what job was discussed.

Ryba was an outstanding player at Scottdale (Pa.) when Eddie Dyer managed the Middle Atlantic League team in 1929. He was top-notch utility man and played at practically every position on the diamond taht season. As a pitcher he won ten games and lost one.

Rickey's Future Still Undecided

Final Decision May Come Today

BROOKLYN, Oct. 23 (AP)—Branch Rickey met with other Brooklyn Dodger stockholders today without announcing his plans for 1951.

Rickey and his partners wouldn't say whether his contract as Dodger general manager, expiring Saturday, will be renewed.

"I am available," said Rickey. "I have not received any offers from another club. I am not going to discuss any other club or any other engagements."

Walter O'Malley, Dodger vice-president and owner of 25 per cent of the club, said he will make an announcement at 3 p. m. (EST) tomorrow that "might throw some light on the situation."

O'Malley said he will meet tomorrow with Mrs. John L. Smith who also owns 25 per cent.

"Until then I am not at liberty to answer any questions," said O'Malley.

O'Malley said he has not discussed the situation at any length because Rickey just returned from a trip to Billings, Mont.

"My stock is sold to somebody," Rickey said, "whether it's William Zeckendorf or my remaining partners."

Zeckendorf arranged to buy Rickey's 25 per cent holdings for a reported $1,000,000 Sept. 23. But O'Malley and Mrs. Smith have an option giving them first rights to buy the stock for the same price. So far they have not said what they are going to do.

Informed opinion around Brooklyn headquarters was that Rickey is through with the Dodgers.

Rickey was re-elected to the board of directors of the Dodgers but it was explained that a substitute director could be named "immediately" if there should be a resignation.

College Football May Restore Fair Catch Next Year

Abolishment Mistake, Lou Little Contends

By JACK HAND

NEW YORK, Oct. 23. (AP)—College football may restore the fair catch to the rule book in 1951.

At least Lou Little, chairman of the coaches rules committee, thinks the boys may have made a mistake in abolishing the fair catch last winter.

"I have written to Fritz Crisler (NCAA rules committee chairman), suggesting we reconsider our action," said Little. "I'm wondering if we were right last year."

Little spoke at the weekly luncheon of the New York Football Writers Association. He explained how the fair catch was abolished.

"In recent years we've spent so much time developing puft runbacks that nobody used the fair catch," he said. "You'd get two men back and criss cross them, not worrying about trying to block the punt.

"But the last few years they have started to use a new spread formation on punts. The punter goes back deep, maybe 15 yards away, and kicks as high and far as he can. The lineman just brush the other team. Then they all go down field in a wave and stand right in front of the receiver. He can't stick up his hand for fair catch. He has to catch the ball (to prevent a long roll), knowing that he is going to be dumped as soon as he does.

"We all do it. Columbia had good luck with Harvard, getting down fast. Once the receiver fumbled and we recovered, setting up a touchdown. Last week against Penn it backfired on us. I'm just wondering if we did right in abolishing the fair catch."

Steve Owen, coach of the pro New York Giants who upset Cleveland yesterday, advised the colleges to bring back the fair catch. The professionals still have it.

Bass Is Considered As VPI Grid Mentor

RICHMOND, Va., Oct. 23 (AP)—Line Coach Marvin Bass of William and Mary is being considered for the head coaching job at Virginia Tech, the Richmond News Leader reported today.

The paper stated that an influential group of Tech alumni was leaning strongly toward Bass to succeed Robert C. McNeish, who resigned last week. Allan Learned, who had directed the frosh eleven, is serving out the season as fill-in coach for the Gobblers.

Bass was a star tackle at William and Mary during the early forties. Later, he joined the Tribe as line coach. In 1949, he switched to North Carolina, but returned to William and Mary this year.

Phils Sign Trinity College Infielder

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 23 (AP)—The Philadephia Phillies today announced the signing of infielder Larry Hutnick, outstanding Trinity College athlete for an "undisclosed sum of money not enough to make the boy a bonus player."

An end on Trinity's varsity football team last year, Hutnick also starred on the basketball and of the baseball teams. He hit .338 for Trinity. Since he is not classed as a bonus player, Hutnick signed for less than $6,000.

Major Leaguers Play In Driving Snowstorm

AUGUSTA, Me., Oct. 23 (AP) — Barnstorming major leaguers played baseball in a driving snowstorm that left up to four inches in northern and central Maine today.

It was the state's first real snowstorm of the season.

Birdie Tebbetts' All-Stars beat the Aroostook All-Stars 10-0 in a game at Presque Isle that was called after five and one half innings. Three inches of snow made the base paths unnavigable.

The U. S. Weather Bureau said Greenville had four inches early tonight and snow still was falling.

TRA Suspends Chicago Track

Questionable Actions Of Officers Are Cited

CHICAGO, Oct. 23 (AP)—The Thoroughbred Racing Association today suspended Sportsman's Park from TRA membership for "questionable actions of officers and employes," but the track plans to finish its current meeting ending Nov. 11.

The TRA's action was announced at a board of directors meeting in New York without elaboration on the charge. The Kefauver Senate Committee, studying crime, recently quizzed two men connected with the track.

William H. Johnston, Sportsman's president, who recently was instructed by the Illinois Racing Board to fire an elleged associate of Al Capone from the racetrack's payroll, said via phone from his home at Jacksonville, Fla.

"I have had no official notification of the TRA's action. It comes as a complete surprise, therefore I cannot comment on it. There will be racing as usual."

The Illinois Racing Board which has jurisdiction over the track said it will not take immediate action in the case.

The TRA said it has no authority to prevent the track from conducting it's racing program. The suspension is from the national racing organization.

Southern Methodist Voted Country's No. 1 Grid Team

Mustangs Pass Army Eleven In Weekly Poll

Oklahoma Is Third, Northwestern 9th, 246 Cast Ballots

BY HAROLD CLAASSEN

Matty Bell SMU

The Southwest Conference power, which made stubborn Rice its 42 to 21 victim Saturday night, gained 96 first place nominations from the 246 voting sports critics. Army, leader the past two weeks dropped to second despite its 49-0 conquest of Harvard while Oklahoma, the former runner-up, slipped to third, the place formerly held by Southern Methodist.

Kentucky remained in fourth place and the top ten was completed by California, Ohio State, Texas, Tennessee, Northwestern and Cornell in that order.

Maryland Takes Dive

Tennessee, Northwestern and Cornell are newcomers to the present list, replacing Stanford, Maryland and Washington, all of whom were defeated last Saturday.

With Kyle Rote as their big producer, the Mustangs have romped over five opponents from five different circuits. In order, they have defeated Georgia Tech, Ohio State, Missouri, Oklahoma A & M, and Rice. In building their unblemished record, the Texans have scored 184 points to 61 for their opponents. That's an average of 37 to 12 in each game.

Mustangs Are Idle

They are idle this week while preparing for their annual tussle with Texas, seventh in the weekly rankings for the past two weeks.

The voting was the second heaviest in the 15 years of the poll being exceeded only by the 275 votes of last week. Only one ballot listed Notre Dame, former darling of the voters. It was for eighth place and the resultant three points dropped the Irish, beaten last Saturday by Indiana for the second loss this season, into a tie for 39th place with Louisiana State, Yale, Iowa and Virginia.

Indiana, Notre Dame's conqueror, hopped into 19th place on the strength of the victory.

Wildcats Skyrocket

Biggest jump of the tabulation, however, was registered by unbeaten Northwestern. The Wildcats leaped from 20th place a week ago to ninth today on the strength of a 28-23 victory over Pittsburgh. It was the fourth triumph for Northwestern.

Tennessee's climb was almost as sensational. The Volunteers, a preseason favorite for the Southeastern Conference title but licked by Mississippi State, sky-rocketed from 18th to eighth place by nipping Alabama, 14 to 9.

The top teams (figures in brackets indicate first place votes):

TOP TEN	POINTS
1. Southern Methodist (96)	2,071
2. Army (84)	1,991
3. Oklahoma (35)	1,974

7. Texas	782
8. Tennessee	345
9. Northwestern	333
10. Cornell	318
SECOND TEN:

14. Michigan	116
15. Michigan State	102
16. Clemson	72
17. Wake Forest	67
18. UCLA	64
19. Indiana	60
20. Florida (1)	54

Washington 53, Princeton 52, Kansas 47, Rice 40, Stanford 32, Wyoming 32, Pennsylvania 30, Maryland 26, Vanderbilt 23, Georgia 17, Nebraska 8, North Carolina 8, West Texas State 7, Loyola of Los Angeles 6, Duke 6, Georgia Tech 4, Alabama 4, Tulane 4, Notre Dame 3, Louisiana State 3, Virginia 3, Yale 3, Iowa 3, Wisconsin 2, Lewis & Clark 2, North Carolina State 1, Washington & Lee 1, South Carolina 1, Wichita 1, Xavier of Cincinnati 1.

Powers Leads Scoring Race

Noyes Thompson (Tommy) Powers of Cumberland is now leading the Southern Conference in scoring with 48 points to his credit.

The former Allegany High ace, now wingback at Duke University, took over the lead Saturday when he registered six touchdowns as the Blue Devils trounced Richmond 41-0.

Fred Cone, Clemson, is second with 36 tallies and Dick Lewis, William & Mary, is third with 35 markers.

Luke Appling May Manage At Memphis

CHICAGO, Oct. 23 (AP) — Luke Appling, whose 2,218 games at shortstop for the White Sox stands as an all-time major league baseball record, may become manager of the club's farm club at Memphis in the Southern Association this week.

Appling is scheduled to meet in Chicago tomorrow or Wednesday with Chuck Comiskey, Sox vice president, and general manager Frank Lane.

Lauer Leads Parade • • • David With Altoona

Kurtz Sets Record • • • Ball Is On The Spot

By C. V. BURNS

Potomac State School is sailing along so nicely on the gridiron that followers of Coach Dana Lough's Catamounts are predicting an undefeated season for the Keyser team.

With six wins already under their belts, the Catamounts can take it all by knocking off George Washington University's "B" team, Salem College and Gaullaudet College in remaining contests.

Three of the P. S. victims to date have been conference teams, namely, Glenville, Shepherd and Concord. Salem is the only conference foe left on the 1950 card.

Three years ago Potomac State annexed conference honors. The 1947 team's over-all record was six wins, one loss and two ties. Lough's men whipped Concord, Morris Harvey, Shepherd, D. & E., Salem and West Virginia Tech and tied West Liberty and Glenville.

The only loss came at the hands of California (Pa.) Teachers College, a non-conference opponent.

• — • — •

We note that players from five different states have figured in Potomac State's scoring this season. Twelve men have had a hand in the scoring of 190 points in six games and they hail from New Jersey, Delaware, Ohio, Pennsylvania and West Virginia.

Theodore (Ted) Lauer of Atlantic Highlands, N.J., heads the list with 53 tallies, including eight touchdowns. Steve Burda, Pittsburgh, is second with 36. Here's the list:

Player	TD	PAT	Pts.
Ted Lauer, At. High, N. J.	8	5	53
Steve Burda, Pittsburgh	6	0	36
Jno. Caldwell, Logan, W. Va.	3	0	18

Sammy David, former Pitt basketball and baseball star, who scored 258 points in 13 games, an average of 19.9 per game, for Washington (Pa.) last season, is working out with the Altoona Flyers quint.

The Flyers have been drilling with the Pitt and Duquesne U. squads and "Chick" Davies' Homestead High cagers.

Grady Akers, former Gettysburg College player, and Steve Stephanic, ex-Duquesne U. flash are among the candidates.

How would you like to be carrying the ball over the goal line then have it squirt out of your arms into the mitts of an opposing player who dashes 102 yards to a touchdown?

That happened in the Bedford-Conemaugh Township game Friday night at Bedford.

The snatch was made by Capt. Harry Kurtz of Bedford and is a schoolboy record for the tri-state area unless someone can prove that a player made a longer TD run.

Kurtz, incidentally, dashed 55 yards for another score during the thriller in which the Bisons were defeated 20-18 due to an uneducated toe.

Kingwood High in Preston County (W. Va.) needs only one more win to complete an undefeated football season. The Stags have won six straight and meet University High, Morgantown, this week. Kingwood is a Class B school.

Terra Alta has ended its season with a 5-1 record while Rowlesburg closed with a .500 mark of 3-3.

His Washington Redskins have lost four in a row after copping the season opener. And that's a rocky road ahead with the Redskins slated to play five of their seven remaining games on the road.

The Philly Eagles and Cleveland Browns must be met twice each and the New York Giants, Pittsburgh and Baltimore once each. Playing this kind of a schedule is a good way to get your brains knocked out.

Little St. Francis College at Loretto, Pa., the alma mater of a flock of LaSalle grads, will play three basketball games at Johnstown's massive War Memorial Arena during the 1950-51 season. V.P.I. will be met Dec. 5, Creighton on January 2 and Texas Wesleyan, Jan 21.

St. Francis is a member of the Eastern Catholic Intercollegiate Athletic Conference of 11 schools.

The Terps have never beaten the Blue Devils in football, losing by scores of 34-0, 38-7, 50-0, 42-0 19-7 and 13-12.

Johnstown, Pa., the only charter member left in the Middle Atlantic Baseball League which opened in 1925, is seeking affiliation with a major league team for next year.

One year of independent operation was more than enough for the Johnstown directors. Their opinion is that further independent competition is utterly hopeless. And the baseball public, judging by the way the turnstiles didn't click last summer, feels the same way about it.

In the past the Johnnies have been affiliated with the Pirates, Brooklyn and St. Louis Browns.

Cardinals Asked To Pay Medical Bills Of Ford

Deliberate Slugging Charged By Cleveland

CLEVELAND, Oct. 23 (AP)—National Football League officials offered "no comment" today in answer to a Cleveland Browns' move to have the Chicago Cardinals pay the remaining salary and medical bills of an injured Cleveland player.

Arthur (Mickey) McBride, owner of the Browns, said he would ask Commissioner Bert Bell to order the Cards to reimburse the Cleveland club as the result of serious injuries incurred last week by end Len Ford.

Bell said in Philadelphia he would wait until he received the complaint before saying anything.

"After all, I don't know what it's all about," Bell said. "I have to have both sides presented in order to make any decision."

Cardinal President Ray Bennigsen was reported from Chicago to be unexcited about McBride's statement, but he declined comment until he hears from Bell.

Ford suffered a broken nose, fractured cheek bone and jaw, and lost several teeth in the game with the Cardinals.

"Ford was deliberately slugged by Pat Harder of the Cardinals," McBride said. "Motion pictures of the game show our boy was blameless.

"Football is a rough game, and we wouldn't object if a boy were hurt on a legitimate play. But this was different. It not only injured one of our outstanding players, but it jeopardized our chances in the league."

Harder Didn't Use Fists, Lambeau Says

CHICAGO, Oct. 23 (AP)—A hard shoulder block—and not the fists—is what fullback Pat Harder used on end Len Ford of the Cleveland Browns, Coach Curly Lambeau of the Chicago Cardinals said today.

Ford suffered a fractured jaw, cheek bone and nose, and lost several teeth in last week's pro football game with the Cards. Cleveland won 34-24.

Today, Arthur (Mickey) McBride, owner of the Browns, said he will ask Commissioner Bert Bell to order the Cardinals to pay Ford's remaining salary, hospital and medical bills. McBride declared Ford "was deliberately slugged" by Harder.

"In that Cleveland game, Ford slugged anybody who blocked for our ball carrier in sweeping his end," asserted Lambeau. "He hit Ed Bagdon (Cardinal guard) in the mouth and drew a 15-yard penalty for that and he cracked Harder's teeth earlier in the game.

"On the play where Ford was injured, Harder ducked a swing and then hit the end with a hard shoulder block, which is legal."

One Hitter To Vie

NEW YORK, Oct. 23 (AP)—With Hill Prince and Noor off to California, a field of nine or 10 horses appeared certain for the $50,000-added Empire City Gold Cup Saturday at Jamaica.

There is no apparent standout, unless it be Greentree Stable's One Hitter, twice winner over Noor at Belmont Park.

Gavilan Held Even

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Oct. 23 (AP)—Kid Gavilan of Havana, Cuba, was held to a draw by comparatively unknown Tommy Ciarlo of Waterbury in a 10-round feature bout at the New Haven Arena tonight.

Ryba Mentioned For St. Louis Job Vacated By Dyer

ST. LOUIS, Oct. 23 (AP)—The name of Mike Ryba cropped up today in speculation over a possible successor to Eddie Dyer, who bowed out recently as manager of the St. Louis Cardinals.

MIKE RYBA

Ryba last season managed the Boston Red Sox' Louisville, Ky., club.

Reports that he was being considered as a candidate for the Redbird post drifted into St. Louis from Ryba's home town of Springfield, Mo.

Fred Saigh, owner of the Cardinals, said today he talked with Ryba here Oct. 18 about "a possible job" in the St. Louis organization.

Saigh declined to say, however, what job was discussed.

Ryba was an outstanding player at Scottdale (Pa.) when Eddie Dyer managed the Middle Atlantic League team in 1929. He was top-notch utility man and played at practically every position on the diamond taht season. As a pitcher he won ten games and lost one.

Rickey's Future Still Undecided

Final Decision May Come Today

BROOKLYN, Oct. 23 (AP)—Branch Rickey met with other Brooklyn Dodger stockholders today without announcing his plans for 1951.

Rickey and his partners wouldn't say whether his contract as Dodger general manager, expiring Saturday, will be renewed.

"I am available," said Rickey. "I have not received any offers from another club. I am not going to discuss any other club or any other engagements."

Walter O'Malley, Dodger vice-president and owner of 25 per cent of the club, said he will make an announcement at 3 p. m. (EST) tomorrow that "might throw some light on the situation."

O'Malley said he will meet tomorrow with Mrs. John L. Smith who also owns 25 per cent.

"Until then I am not at liberty to answer any questions," said O'Malley.

O'Malley said he has not discussed the situation at any length because Rickey just returned from a trip to Billings, Mont.

"My stock is sold to somebody," Rickey said, "whether it's William Zeckendorf or my remaining partners."

Zeckendorf arranged to buy Rickey's 25 per cent holdings for a reported $1,000,000 Sept. 23. But O'Malley and Mrs. Smith have an option giving them first rights to buy the stock for the same price. So far they have not said what they are going to do.

Informed opinion around Brooklyn headquarters was that Rickey is through with the Dodgers.

Rickey was re-elected to the board of directors of the Dodgers but it was explained that a substitute director could be named "immediately" if there should be a resignation.

College Football May Restore Fair Catch Next Year

Abolishment Mistake, Lou Little Contends

By JACK HAND

NEW YORK, Oct. 23. (AP)—College football may restore the fair catch to the rule book in 1951.

At least Lou Little, chairman of the coaches rules committee, thinks the boys may have made a mistake in abolishing the fair catch last winter.

"I have written to Fritz Crisler (NCAA rules committee chairman), suggesting we reconsider our action," said Little. "I'm wondering if we were right last year."

Little spoke at the weekly luncheon of the New York Football Writers Association. He explained how the fair catch was abolished.

"In recent years we've spent so much time developing punt runbacks that nobody used the fair catch," he said. "You'd get two men back and criss cross them, not worrying about trying to block the punt.

"But the last few years they have started to use a new spread formation on punts. The punter goes back deep, maybe 15 yards away, and kicks as high and far as he can. The lineman just brush the other team. Then they all go down field in a wave and stand right in front of the receiver. He can't stick up his hand for fair catch. He has to catch the ball (to prevent a long roll), knowing that he is going to be dumped as soon as he does.

"We all do it. Columbia had good luck with Harvard, getting down fast. Once the receiver fumbled and we recovered, setting up a touchdown. Last week against Penn it backfired on us. I'm just wondering if we did right in abolishing the fair catch."

Steve Owen, coach of the pro New York Giants who upset Cleveland yesterday, advised the colleges to bring back the fair catch. The professionals still have it.

Bass Is Considered As VPI Grid Mentor

RICHMOND, Va., Oct. 23 (AP)—Line Coach Marvin Bass of William and Mary is being considered for the head coaching job at Virginia Tech, the Richmond News Leader reported today.

The paper stated that an influential group of Tech alumni was leaning strongly toward Bass to succeed Robert C. McNeish, who resigned last week. Allan Learned, who had directed the frosh eleven, is serving out the season as fill-in coach for the Gobblers.

Bass was a star tackle at William and Mary during the early forties. Later, he joined the Tribe as line coach. In 1949, he switched to North Carolina, but returned to William and Mary this year.

Phils Sign Trinity College Infielder

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 23 (AP)—The Philadephia Phillies today announced the signing of infielder Larry Hutnick, outstanding Trinity College athlete for an "undisclosed sum of money not enough to make the boy a bonus player."

An end on Trinity's varsity football team last year, Hutnick also starred on the basketball and of the baseball teams. He hit .338 for Trinity. Since he is not classed as a bonus player. Hutnick signed for less than $6,000.

Railroad-Owned Land Available To Deer Hunters

McClintic Makes Action Known

KEYSER, W. Va.—Conservation Director C. F. McClintic has announced that land owned by the Western Maryland Railway and its subsidiary, Davis Coal and Coke Company has been ordered reopened to deer hunters holding permits for the anterless deer season in parts of Tucker and Grant Counties, October 26, 27 and 28.

Affected are hunting Units 5, 6, 7, 8 and 9, which had been closed earlier by Railway Company permission.

Howard L. Wise, secretary of the Blackwater Rod and Gun Club, received a letter from the Western Maryland Railway Company ordering the reopening. Copies of the letters, received by Dr. McClintic from the U. S. Forest Service and from the West Virginia Power and Transmission Company, dealing with the anterless hunt were made public. They stated that in order to stabilize the deer herd it is necessary to declare this open season.

A copy of the letter to Secretary Wise from the Chief, Division of Wildlife Management, U. S. Forest Service, Department of Agriculture, stated: "The Forest Service cooperates very closely with the Conservation Commission of West Virginia in carrying out the State game regulations and laws for the protection and utilization of the wildlife resource. Therefore, the State game laws apply to national forest areas. After careful study the Forest Service believes that the season is justified and will continue to support the State in the action it has taken."

The other letter pertaining to certain lands in the vicinity of Davis, Tucker county, under lease to Canaan, Incorporated, by the West Virginia Power and Transmission Company, was signed by the manager of the company and said in part; "Under the terms of the lease, Canaan, Inc., has the right to post the land to prohibit hunting or any other activities that would interfere with the full use of the property. Consequently the Company has neither given permission for the land to be posted nor has it granted permission to Canaan, Inc., to assign posting rights to the Blackwater Rod and Gun Club."

Director McClintic said that as this last tract of land is concerned, legal posting already exists because the land is completely fenced and all fenced lands in West Virginia are legally posted according to Article III, Section 6—Chapter 20, Code of West Virginia. This law is also called to hunters' attention in this year's hunting regulations.

The Conservation Commission is now preparing mimeographed instructions and directions for enabling hunters to reach Hunting Units 5, 6, 7, 8 and 9 without trespassing on closed lands when the season opens Thursday.

Jury Acquits McAvoy After Theft Hearing

KEYSER, W. Va.—After deliberating nearly three hours, a jury in Mineral County Circuit Court yesterday returned a not guilty verdict in the case of William C. McAvoy, 32, Ridgeville.

McAvoy was tried on an indictment charging him with being a partner in the theft of more than 100 pounds of wool from the farm of William Bane last May.

Witnesses were instructed to return to court today, when one of the other three indictments against McAvoy on theft charges may be called for trial.

McAvoy, Carl Lee Baer, 24, and Alvie H. Mayhew, 20, were indicted in the theft of three sheep from Clyde Bonar, four yearling cattle from Albert Swinabart, a furnace from a house owned by John Kuydendall and 717 pounds of wool from William Bane, Isaac Whipp and Creed Mott.

Mayhew and Baer, who had previously been sentenced, both claimed the thefts had been planned at McAvoy's home and that they were employed by McAvoy as timber cutters.

Mayhew said he furnished the truck which brought a load of wool, stolen from Bane, to Cumberland for sale. He said the wool brought "approximately $54" and that his share was $5.

Robert Kaplon, employe of a Cumberland hide and wool firm, testified he had bought 123 pounds of wool for $63.96 but had not known it was stolen.

Cpl. O. G. Webley, of the Keyser detachment of State Police, identified fingerprints of McAvoy's and Bane told of discovering the theft the day after it occurred.

Railroad-Owned Land Available To Deer Hunters

McClintic Makes Action Known

KEYSER, W. Va.—Conservation Director C. F. McClintic has announced that land owned by the Western Maryland Railway and its subsidiary, Davis Coal and Coke Company has been ordered reopened to deer hunters holding permits for the anterless deer season in parts of Tucker and Grant Counties, October 26, 27 and 28.

Affected are hunting Units 5, 6, 7, 8 and 9, which had been closed earlier by Railway Company permission.

Howard L. Wise, secretary of the Blackwater Rod and Gun Club, received a letter from the Western Maryland Railway Company ordering the reopening. Copies of the letters, received by Dr. McClintic from the U. S. Forest Service and from the West Virginia Power and Transmission Company, dealing with the anterless hunt were made public. They stated that in order to stabilize the deer herd it is necessary to declare this open season.

A copy of the letter to Secretary Wise from the Chief, Division of Wildlife Management, U. S. Forest Service, Department of Agriculture, stated: "The Forest Service cooperates very closely with the Conservation Commission of West Virginia in carrying out the State game regulations and laws for the protection and utilization of the wildlife resource. Therefore, the State game laws apply to national forest areas. After careful study the Forest Service believes that the season is justified and will continue to support the State in the action it has taken."

The other letter pertaining to certain lands in the vicinity of Davis, Tucker county, under lease to Canaan, Incorporated, by the West Virginia Power and Transmission Company, was signed by the manager of the company and said in part; "Under the terms of the lease, Canaan, Inc., has the right to post the land to prohibit hunting or any other activities that would interfere with the full use of the property. Consequently the Company has neither given permission for the land to be posted nor has it granted permission to Canaan, Inc., to assign posting rights to the Blackwater Rod and Gun Club."

Director McClintic said that as this last tract of land is concerned, legal posting already exists because the land is completely fenced and all fenced lands in West Virginia are legally posted according to Article III, Section 6—Chapter 20, Code of West Virginia. This law is also called to hunters' attention in this year's hunting regulations.

The Conservation Commission is now preparing mimeographed instructions and directions for enabling hunters to reach Hunting Units 5, 6, 7, 8 and 9 without trespassing on closed lands when the season opens Thursday.

KEEPING UP WITH HOLLYWOOD

By LOUELLA PARSONS

HOLLYWOOD, Oct. 2? (INS)—Over the dinner table Marguerite Higgins, the girl reporter who was ordered to leave the fighting front of Korea and reinstated by Gen. MacArthur, himself, told me that she has had several offers to sell her life story.

That's why she is in Hollywood. She will also go on a lecture tour after she finishes a newspaper assignment in Indochina.

Maggie, sans levis and Army garb—in fact she was wearing a pretty dinner dress—was the guest of Mr. and Mrs. William Perlberg. She had met the Perlbergs in Berlin. She hasn't yet met Darryl Zanuck, but I hear 20th Century-Fox has the inside track on her story. Bill Perlberg says even though he is no longer with Zanuck his admiration for the little colonel has never changed, and if Maggie chooses 20th, he is in favor of it.

• — • — •

My girl friend and occasional alter ego on the radio, Rosalind Russell, is all set to start "Embrace the Night," by Larry Marcus, for her own independent producing company. She hopes to get it going before Christmas.

Rosalind Russell

Just like a woman, Roz is secretive about the story. All she'll say is that it is a startling love theme, which never before has been used in a motion picture. Now, Roz, how curious can you make us?

Knowing she usually gets what she wants, she should succeed in signing Wendell Corey for her co-star. She's talking to him about it now. Later, Roz plans the comedy I told you about, "You Can't Judge a Lady," which she bought a year ago but has been keeping under wraps. If MGM will lend Van Johnson, he'll co-star with her.

• — • — •

At last we'll get a look at Margaret Sheridan, the Hollywood beauty Howard Hawks put under personal contract five years ago after seeing her photograph in a magazine. She'll have the top role in "The Thing" which Hawks and Edward Lasker are making for RKO.

Originally the comely model was supposed to play the lead in Hawks' "Red River," but she had to bow out because of a stork date, and Joanne Dru took her place.

"The Thing," a weirdie about life on another planet, will be directed by Christian Nyby. For years Nyby has been a top cutter, and Hawks is giving him this chance because he won an Academy Award for "Red River."

• — • — •

The Will Rogers estate, which has steadfastly held out against every actor who has been suggested to play Will at Warner Brothers, now has a suggestion of its own.

According to Mitchell Hamilburg, who is handling the Rogers property, Mary and her two brothers, and he are all agreed on Jimmy Stewart. Well, of course, it's one thing to be agreed on Stewart, and another to get him.

• — • — •

"All About Eve" will have its glamour premier November 16 at Grauman's Chinese.

Joe Pasternak has bought the gorgeous Bel-Air home of Judge Asa Call. With all those children, he and Dorothy need a big house.

Elizabeth Taylor and Nicky Hilton are in the midst of negotiations to buy a house which will be their own. It's the same one they're now living in, but are renting from Nicky's brother, Baron.

Those three pals, David Niven, Robert Coote, and Richard Greene, are fishing in Mexican waters on Dick's 34-foot boat.

Jeanette MacDonald had an enormous triumph at Carnegie Hall. Well, none of us in Hollywood are surprised.

Barbara Bel Geddes has three movie offers. If the Steinbeck play lasts, she'll forget them, but if it does not she will hightail to Hollywood.

That's all today. See you tomorrow.

An itinerant minister of the gospel, Brother Joseph, saves the life of card sharp Zeb Smith, in a barroom brawl, and loses his own in so doing. Zeb makes a death-bed agreement with the preacher to carry out his desire to have a church built — not in the way of violence and cheating, but rather, according to the precepts laid down in the Bible.

Men laugh at Zeb as they had at Joseph in his appeals for money to carry on the good work. Then, circumstance brings him into the orbit of the notorious lady bandit, Doll Brown, who has a price of $5,000.00 on her head.

Radio And Television

By JOHN CROSBY

Let There Be Color

AND GOD SAID: 'Let there be light' and there was light. And God saw the light, that that it was good, and God divided the light from the darkness."

And the Federal Communications Commission saw color and said 'Let there be color' and there was color. Or at least there was an edict decreeing color. And the public tried to divide the black and the white from the color and discovered only confusion. Next to the FCCs God's problem was comparatively simple.

John Crosby

The Columbia Broadcasting System's 405-line, imcompatible color television system is now the law of the land, subject, of course, to change by RCA's court fight, which is still in the offing. Since the FCC decision, the emphasis in news reports has been entirely on the television set manufacturers, who are almost wholly and violently opposed to the manufacture of CBS color sets for the simple reason that they are all tooled up and in mass production and have—or had—an immense, hungry market for black and white sets.

* * *

However, there is another angle that has been widely neglected. Who is going to broadcast CBS color? As of right now, only one TV station in the nation—WCBS-TV—has the equipment to originate CBS-type color broadcasts. However, any station connected to WCBS by cable could transmit WCBS-originated color programs. WMARTV in Baltimore and several other stations—probably WTOP in Washington, which is 45 per cent C.B.S.-owned, and WCAU in Philadelphia—have expressed interest in broadcasting C.B.S. color. WMAR-TV plans to be carrying CBS programs within thirty to sixty days, provided they can get a few receivers in Baltimore to pick up the programs. (There are from twenty-five to fifty receivers in existence capable of picking up the color telecasts.)

However, WMAR-TV declares firmly it will not pre-empt time now sold on black and white to commercial interests to broadcast color to an audience of nobody. This is everyone's problem. TV broadcasters have spent roughly one billion dollars—give or take a hundred million or so—and four years building an audience which is almost but not quite big enough to put television in the black. They are understandably cold to any proposition which would put them right back where they were four years ago. Namely, with no audience.

It is no understatement to say that no television broadcaster in this country—including CBS—wants to tackle color at this time. Because it is CBS's baby, WCBS-TV is committed to broadcast twenty hours a week of color and has further stated that it will devote at least two half-hour programs of prime evening time to color broadcasts. Those two programs are already driving CBS program directors out of their wits.

CBS, like the other networks, are almost entirely sold out on evening time. When those two color broadcasts come on, millions of TV sets in the New York area—at least those tuned to WCBS—will go dark. And the average set-owner will understand clearly for the first time something he only dimly understands now. You can't get CBS color on present sets. Consequently, your average set-owner will switch over to DuMont or ABC or NBC. CBS will be broadcasting color to an audience of nobody. In fact, CBS is going to have great difficulty selling the black-and-white time following its color broadcasts to a sponsor because the network will have lost 100 per cent of its audience. As someone remarked the other day: "If CBS wins another victory like this, it'll be out of business."

However, CBS, big as its problem is, has much at stake. ($150,000,000 n' patent rights, according to current quotations.) The other station owners have nothing but red ink and headaches in prospect for them in broadcasting color. The only inducements are a healthy fear of the FCC, which very likely will ask each station owner what he has done about color when his license comes up for renewal, and a desire not to be left out in the cold on a delevopment that may conceivably dominate all TV broadcasting in years to come.

Meanwhile, the sale of black and white sets could easily grind to a complete halt while the public tries to figure out what is going on. To the question, "Should I buy a black and white set now or wait till color sets are available," one of the most perceptive answers was supplied by Donald Fink, editor of "Electronics" magazine, a great authority in this controversy. Fink says that color broadcasts at peak can't possibly occupy more than 10 per cent of the broadcasters' time within the next few years. Therefore, the average set-owner will get at least 90 per cent efficiency from his set during its lifetime. That should be enough for most people.

One final word. CBS color television has, I think, been maligned by the word "degraded" which has been applied to it by many of its critics. It ought to be explained that "degraded" is used entirely in a technical sense, that it means only that the definition has diminished from 531 to 405 lines. However, to these tired, layman's eyes and I imagine to most eyes, CBS color is a magnificent thing. It brings a splendor and opulence to any TV broadcast, no matter how trivial, which cannot be imagined by anyone who has not seen it.

DAILY CRYPTOQUOTE—Here's how to work it:

A X Y D L B A A X R

One letter simply stands for another. In this example A is used for the three L's, X for the two O's, etc. Single letters, apostrophies, the length and formation of the words are all hints. Each day the code letters are different.

Radio And Television

By JOHN CROSBY

Let There Be Color

AND GOD SAID: 'Let there be light' and there was light. And God saw the light, that that it was good, and God divided the light from the darkness."

And the Federal Communications Commission saw color and said 'Let there be color' and there was color. Or at least there was an edict decreening color. And the public tried to divide the black and the white from the color and discovered only confusion. Next to the FCCs God's problem was comparatively simple.

John Crosby

The Columbia Broadcasting System's 405-line, imcompatible color television system is now the law of the land, subject, of course, to change by RCA's court fight, which is still in the offing. Since the FCC decision, the emphasis in news reports has been entirely on the television set manufacturers, who are almost wholly and violently opposed to the manufacture of CBS color sets for the simple reason that they are all tooled up and in mass production and have—or had—an immense, hungry market for black and white sets.

* * *

However, there is another angle that has been widely neglected. Who is going to broadcast CBS color? As of right now, only one TV station in the nation—WCBS-TV—has the equipment to originate CBS-type color broadcasts. However, any station connected to WCBS by cable could transmit WCBS-originated color programs. WMARTV in Baltimore and several other stations—probably WTOP in Washington, which is 45 per cent C.B.S.-owned, and WCAU in Philadelphia—have expressed interest in broadcasting C.B.S. color. WMAR-TV plans to be carrying CBS programs within thirty to sixty days, provided they can get a few receivers in Baltimore to pick up the programs. (There are from twenty-five to fifty receivers in existence capable of picking up the color telecasts.)

However, WMAR-TV declares firmly it will not pre-empt time now sold on black and white to commercial interests to broadcast color to an audience of nobody. This is everyone's problem. TV broadcasters have spent roughly one billion dollars—give or take a hundred million or so—and four years building an audience which is almost but not quite big enough to put television in the black. They are understandably cold to any proposition which would put them right back where they were four years ago. Namely, with no audience.

It is no understatement to say that no television broadcaster in this country—including CBS—wants to tackle color at this time. Because it is CBS's baby, WCBS-TV is committed to broadcast twenty hours a week of color and has further stated that it will devote at least two half-hour programs of prime evening time to color broadcasts. Those two programs are already driving CBS program directors out of their wits.

CBS, like the other networks, are almost entirely sold out on evening time. When those two color broadcasts come on, millions of TV sets in the New York area—at least those tuned to WCBS—will go dark. And the average set-owner will understand clearly for the first time something he only dimly understands now. You can't get CBS color on present sets. Consequently, your average set-owner will switch over to DuMont or ABC or NBC. CBS will be broadcasting color to an audience of nobody. In fact, CBS is going to have great difficulty selling the black-and-white time following its color broadcasts to a sponsor because the network will have lost 100 per cent of its audience. As someone remarked the other day: "If CBS wins another victory like this, it'll be out of business."

However, CBS, big as its problem is, has much at stake. ($150,000,000 in patent rights, according to current quotations.) The other station owners have nothing but red ink and headaches in prospect for them in broadcasting color. The only inducements are a healthy fear of the FCC, which very likely will ask each station owner what he has done about color when his license comes up for renewal, and a desire not to be left out in the cold on a delevopment that may conceivably dominate all TV broadcasting in years to come.

Meanwhile, the sale of black and white sets could easily grind to a complete halt while the public tries to figure out what is going on. To the question, "Should I buy a black and white set now or wait till color sets are available," one of the most perceptive answers was supplied by Donald Fink, editor of "Electronics" magazine, a great authority in this controversy. Fink says that color broadcasts at peak can't possibly occupy more than 10 per cent of the broadcasters' time within the next few years. Therefore, the average set-owner will get at least 90 per cent efficiency from his set during its lifetime. That should be enough for most people.

One final word. CBS color television has, I think, been maligned by the word "degraded" which has been applied to it by many of its critics. It ought to be explained that "degraded" is used entirely in a technical sense, that it means only that the definition has diminished from 531 to 405 lines. However, to these tired, layman's eyes and I imagine to most eyes, CBS color is a magnificent thing. It brings a splendor and opulence to any TV broadcast, no matter how trivial, which cannot be imagined by anyone who has not seen it.

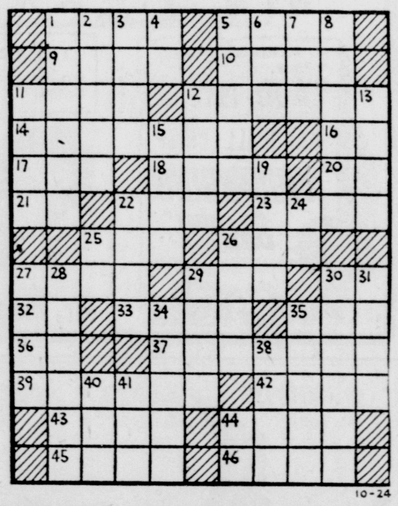
Yesterday's Answer



DAILY CRYPTOQUOTE—Here's how to work it:

A X Y D L B A A X R
is L O N G F E L L O W

One letter simply stands for another. In this example A is used for the three L's, X for the two O's, etc. Single letters, apostrophies, the length and formation of the words are all hints. Each day the code letters are different.

A Cryptogram Quotation

GLFRMC ZSICM CERGM MENVIRGMF DSM ZIVGF—ZLDCIW.

Yesterday's Cryptoquote: STILL WE MOVED TOGETHER, TWINNED AS HORSE'S EAR AND EYE—TENNYSON.

Cards of Thanks

Our sincere thanks to all our friends and neighbors for their help and kindness during our recent bereavement, the death of Carl L. Wilson. The use of cars, floral tributes and expressions of sympathy are deeply appreciated. We especially thank the American Legion, the V.F.W. and Rev. Bailey Jones.
THE FAMILY

In Memoriam

In memory of Ode Garlitz who passed away three years ago October 22.
Where loviiness never dies,
He lives in a land of Glory,
With the blue and the gold of the skies.
And I who have known and have loved him,
Whose passing has brought me sad tears,
To brighten the drifting years.

Cards of Thanks

Our sincere thanks to all our friends and neighbors for their help and kindness during our recent bereavement, the death of Carl L. Wilson. The use of cars, floral tributes and expressions of sympathy are deeply appreciated. We especially thank the American Legion, the V.F.W. and Rev. Bailey Jones.
THE FAMILY

In Memoriam

In memory of Ode Garlitz who passed away three years ago October 22.
Somewhere back of the sunset,
Where loviiness never dies,
He lives in a land of Glory,
With the blue and the gold of the skies.
And I who have known and have loved him,
Whose passing has brought me sad tears,
Will carry his memory always,

BARCLAY ON BRIDGE
By Shepard Barclay
"The Authority on Authorities"

TWO CHANCES EXCEL ONE

WHEN the defeat of a hostile contract hinges upon putting your partner in the lead, it is better to play so that you have two chances to accomplish that end instead of one. Suppose you have the ace and a couple of small cards in the sole suit which could afford entry into his hand. Laying down your ace and then leading a low card would give him the lead on one of the first two rounds only if he had the king. But underleading the ace and then using a low card on the second round of the suit may put him in if he has either the king or the queen.

This was one of the highly competitive hands that developed in the duplicate celebrating "Shepard Barclay Night" at the Barclay Bridge club in Flushing, N. Y. All tables produced that identical contract of 5-Spades doubled It was beaten in a hurry wherever North led his heart K, considering South's double as a command to open his highest since his bidding had shown his length. South in those cases played his heart Q as a suit-preference signal asking for a switch to the higher-ranking diamonds instead of the lower-ranking clubs. That switch produced a trick in each minor to give the defenders three.

At one table the contract was made. North there opened his fourth-best heart, the 3. When South won with the A, he laid down the club A, noted North's 10 and repeated the suit. But the K felled the Q, setting up the dummy's suit. Spades and clubs then enabled West to get the rest of the tricks.

The best result came where Ray Duggan, International Telephone official, sat in the South. When he won the heart 3 with the A, he underled the club A, the K winning. West cleared spades with the A, K and 4 to the 8, then led the club J. Mr. Duggan again held up his A, playing the 8, and the Q won. The diamond J return was won by the K when West made the compulsory try to win with the Q, and the club A then beat the contract a second trick, giving that North-South pair top on the deal.

What is South's best try at 4-Hearts if the Spade A wins the 10 lead and the 4 is returned?

Try And Stop Me
By BENNETT CERF

Good advice is a fine thing to have, of course, but sometimes it doesn't work out just right. Herb Stein, for instance, writes of a beautiful young hopeful in Hollywood, who was assured by her agent, "The only thing you need to land a fat contract at Paramount is better posture. Learn to walk correctly and you're in." So the girl went to an expensive school and spent her days walking up and down with a book balanced on her head. And the day after she graduated, Paramount bought the book.

In one of his classic stories, George Ade told of a thug who murdered his wife and then was put through five hours of grilling at the local police station. He finally exploded, "Gee whiz, Lieutenant, I'd never have killed her if I'd known there was gonna be all this red tape."

A hospital patient gazed fondly at his winsome, red-headed nurse and told the doctor, "Wonderful nurse you've got here. One touch of her hands cooled my fever miraculously." "We know," the doctor answered him. "We could hear her slap clear to the end of the corridor."

Lonaconing Women Plan Masquerade

LONACONING — A masquerade party will be held preceding the business meeting of the Lonaconing Homemakers club Thursday night at the home of Mrs. James Crable, Church street.

A panel discussion on "Soil Conservation" will be conducted by the officers, Mesdames Margaret Thompson, Margaret Gowans, Katherine Wattenschaidt, Mildred Robison, and Mesdames Hilda Phillips, Ethel Dobson, Mary B. Nolan and James Crable.

A nominating committee will be appointed. Members are to bring cookies and candy to the meeting.

Tri-Towns Personals

Mrs. Maude Martin, Lynn Street, Westernport, who was injured in an automobile accident en route to the Celanese plant October 9, is still confined to her home.

Mrs. Joseph Patterson, Piedmont, was admitted to Potomac Valley Hospital, Keyser, Sunday.

Air Warning Test Planned

FROSTBURG. — Outpost 24-B, Ground Observer Corps, will participate in the first large scale test exercise to be conducted Saturday and Sunday, November 4 and 5, by the U. S. Airforce. The local outpost has been instructed to report all aircraft seen or heard from the post during the test.

Chief Observer Adam Kalbaugh is calling a meeting of members to be held Thursday, October 26, 7:30 p. m., in the business office of the Potomac Edison Company.

Observers will be assigned to man the post during the test period, so that each observer will have an opportunity to observe and report aircraft as may be required under war-time conditions.

Military planes taking part in the exercises will not engage in any battle tactics, but will merely make flights for the purpose of testing this division of Civil Defense.

Arrangements have already been made for making use of the outpost building and telephone located at the rear of the residence of Walter Mackay, West Mechanic Street.

Matter Of Fact

vision of what the future will hold if the Truman administration is not confronted by "an independent Congress."

This vision of the future sees the British version of socialism triumphant in the United States, and Russian communism triumphant everywhere else. The United States will be shackled with Socialism because Harry Truman has become the captive of the CIO-PAC, and Communism will be allowed to triumph elsewhere in the world because the Administration has repeatedly demonstrated a "strange sympathy for Communism" — as demonstrated by the fall of China, the "invitation" to attack in Korea, the "whitewash" of the McCarthy charges, the Hiss episode, and the Truman veto of the anti-Communist bill.

November 7 will show whether this is effective strategy. But it must be said that this vision of the future—a socialist America in a vast Communist sea—is somehow a little unreal in the atmosphere of friendly comfort which pervades the main square of Versailles, Ohio, as it basks in the gentle autumn sun.

Market Gains And Losses Almost Evenly Balanced

NEW YORK, Oct. 23 (AP)—Early gains made today in the stock market were too feeble to withstand a last minute light selling attack.

As a consequence they faded away for the most part leaving the stock market about unchanged on balance over a range of $1.50 either way.

Steels showed the best continuous strength of any of the major groups, although the distillers held to the upside virtually throughout.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks was unchanged at $84.70. Industrials in the average lost 20 cents and rails were down 10 cents. Utilities advanced 20 cents.

Out of the 1,166 individual issues traded, gains and losses were almost evenly balanced—447 up and 459 down. There were, however, 96 new highs for the year established on the up side and only two new lows were touched.

The holding company, Graham-Paige, was the most active issue up ⅛ at 2⅝, while Armour & Co. was second off ¼ at 11, and U. S. Steel third up ⅛ at 41⅝.

BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

By Shepard Barclay

TWO CHANCES EXCEL ONE

WHEN the defeat of a hostile contract hinges upon putting your partner in the lead, it is better to play so that you have two chances to accomplish that end instead of one. Suppose you have the ace and a couple of small cards in the sole suit which could afford entry into his hand. Laying down your ace and then leading a low card would give him the lead on one of the first two rounds only if he had the king. But underleading the ace and then using a low card on the second round of the suit may put him in if he has either the king or the queen.

This was one of the highly competitive hands that developed in the duplicate celebrating "Shepard Barclay Night" at the Barclay Bridge club in Flushing, N. Y. All tables produced that identical contract of 5-Spades doubled. It was beaten in a hurry wherever North led his heart K, considering South's double as a command to open his highest since his bidding had shown his length. South in those cases played his heart Q as a suit-preference signal asking for a switch to the higher-ranking diamonds instead of the lower-ranking clubs. That switch produced a trick in each minor to give the defenders three.

At one table the contract was made. North there opened his fourth-best heart, the 3. When South won with the A, he laid down the club A, noted North's 10 and repeated the suit. But the K felled the Q, setting up the dummy's suit. Spades and clubs then enabled West to get the rest of the tricks.

The best result came where Ray Duggan, International Telephone official, sat in the South. When he won the heart 3 with the A, he underled the club A, the K winning. West cleared spades with the A, K and 4 to the 8, then led the club J. Mr. Duggan again held up his A, playing the 8, and the Q won. The diamond J return was won by the K when West made the compulsory try to win with the Q, and the club A then beat the contract a second trick, giving that North-South pair top on the deal.

What is South's best try at 4-Hearts if the Spade A wins the 10 lead and the 4 is returned?

Try And Stop Me

By BENNETT CERF

Good advice is a fine thing to have, of course, but sometimes it doesn't work out just right. Herb Stein, for instance, writes of a beautiful young hopeful in Hollywood, who was assured by her agent, "The only thing you need to land a fat contract at Paramount is better posture. Learn to walk correctly and you're in." So the girl went to an expensive school and spent her days walking up and down with a book balanced on her head. And the day after she graduated, Paramount bought the book.

In one of his classic stories, George Ade told of a thug who murdered his wife and then was put through five hours of grilling at the local police station. He finally exploded, "Gee whiz, Lieutenant, I'd never have killed her if I'd known there was gonna be all this red tape."

A hospital patient gazed fondly at his winsome, red-headed nurse and told the doctor, "Wonderful nurse you've got here. One touch of her hands cooled my fever miraculously." "We know," the doctor answered him. "We could hear her slap clear to the end of the corridor."

Lonaconing Women Plan Masquerade

LONACONING — A masquerade party will be held preceding the business meeting of the Lonaconing Homemakers club Thursday night at the home of Mrs. James Crable, Church street.

A panel discussion on "Soil Conservation" will be conducted by the officers, Mesdames Margaret Thompson, Margaret Gowans, Katherine Wattenschaidt, Mildred Robison, and Mesdames Hilda Phillips, Ethel Dobson, Mary B. Nolan and James Crable.

A nominating committee will be appointed. Members are to bring cookies and candy to the meeting.

Tri-Towns Personals

Mrs. Maude Martin, Lynn Street, Westernport, who was injured in an automobile accident en route to the Celanese plant October 9, is still confined to her home.

Mrs. Joseph Patterson, Piedmont, was admitted to Potomac Valley Hospital, Keyser, Sunday.

Air Warning Test Planned

FROSTBURG. — Outpost 24-B, Ground Observer Corps, will participate in the first large scale test exercise to be conducted Saturday and Sunday, November 4 and 5, by the U. S. Airforce. The local outpost has been instructed to report all aircraft seen or heard from the post during the test.

Chief Observer Adam Kalbaugh is calling a meeting of members to be held Thursday, October 26, 7:30 p. m., in the business office of the Potomac Edison Company.

Observers will be assigned to man the post during the test period, so that each observer will have an opportunity to observe and report aircraft as may be required under war-time conditions.

Military planes taking part in the exercises will not engage in any battle tactics, but will merely make flights for the purpose of testing this division of Civil Defense.

Arrangements have already been made for making use of the outpost building and telephone located at the rear of the residence of Walter Mackay, West Mechanic Street.

Matter Of Fact

vision of what the future will hold if the Truman administration is not confronted by "an independent Congress."

This vision of the future sees the British version of socialism triumphant in the United States, and Russian communism triumphant everywhere else. The United States will be shackled with Socialism because Harry Truman has become the captive of the CIO-PAC, and Communism will be allowed to triumph elsewhere in the world because the Administration has repeatedly demonstrated a "strange sympathy for Communism" — as demonstrated by the fall of China, the "invitation" to attack in Korea, the "whitewash" of the McCarthy charges, the Hiss episode, and the Truman veto of the anti-Communist bill.

November 7 will show whether this is effective strategy. But it must be said that this vision of the future—a socialist America in a vast Communist sea—is somehow a little unreal in the atmosphere of friendly comfort which pervades the main square of Versailles, Ohio, as it basks in the gentle autumn sun.

Market Gains And Losses Almost Evenly Balanced

NEW YORK, Oct. 23 (AP)—Early gains made today in the stock market were too feeble to withstand a last minute light selling attack.

As a consequence they faded away for the most part leaving the stock market about unchanged on balance over a range of $1.50 either way.

Steels showed the best continuous strength of any of the major groups, although the distillers held to the upside virtually throughout.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks was unchanged at $84.70. Industrials in the average lost 20 cents and rails were down 10 cents. Utilities advanced 20 cents.

Out of the 1,166 individual issues traded, gains and losses were almost evenly balanced—447 up and 459 down. There were, however, 96 new highs for the year established on the up side and only two new lows were touched.

The volume of business came to 1,850,000 shares as against 1,840,000 on Friday, not too big a day.

The holding company, Graham-Paige, was the most active issue up ⅛ at 2⅝, while Armour & Co. was second off ¼ at 11, and U. S. Steel third up ⅛ at 41⅝.

Others going higher included Standard Steel Spring up ¾ at 25¾ (after an increased cash dividend and a stock dividend), Publicker 1 at 23⅞, Anderson Prichard Oil 1¼ at 33, Commercial Solvents 1⅛ at 21⅛, Crucible Steel 1⅝ at 31⅛, Schenley 1 at 33¾, American Cyanamid ⅝ at 74⅛, American Smelting 1 at 67⅛, Union Pacific 1¼ at 96¾, and Consolidated Edison ⅜ at 29.

Pay Adjustments Made For Fire, Police Officers

Council Increases Other Salaries

Salary adjustments on a "work differential" basis for officers of the Police and Fire Departments were approved last night by the Mayor and Council by a 4 to 1 vote, with Mayor Thomas S. Post dissenting.

Also approved were raises for three employes at City Hall, over the opposition of Mayor Post and Water Commissioner George H. Tederick.

Those employes are City Clerk Wallace G. Ullery, from $268 to $300 monthly; Miss Mary E. Clay, secretary to the mayor, from $203 to $228; and Miss Nell Cozad, assistant to the city auditor, from $203 to $220.

The order was introduced by Finance Commissioner William H. Buchholtz since all three employes are under the jurisdiction of the Finance Department.

Mayor Post said his opposition did not reflect on the ability of the three employes but he added he could not support the action because "everyone should have adjustments."

Water Commissioner George H. Tederick said two or three employes should not be singled out for raises, but Street Commissioner Lucile W. Roeder said job analysis studies were taken into account.

Ends Discussion

Buchholtz ended the discussion by stating "It's time we started paying people for what they know and do and not for who they know." He voted an emphatic "Aye!" when the matter went to a vote.

Differential pay authorized for the Fire Department at a total cost of $2,280 per year is retroactive to July 1. It is as follows:

Fire chief, monthly salary increased from $286 to $296; assistant fire chiefs, from $256 to $266; captains, from $226 to $241; lieutenants, from $226 to $236; and chauffeurs, $220 to $225.

Differential pay for the Police Department is also retroactive to July 1 and will amount to a total cost of $720 a year. Changes are as follows:

Long said the changes would make the police chief's salary equal to that of the Hagerstown chief of police. He added that the Fire Department differential has been needed "for a long while" to give men an incentive for advancement.

Golden Salary Raised

Mrs. Roeder, who introduced the order, said the work is a seven-day a week job and added Golden is on call for night duty when needed. The "going rate" for such positions, she said, is $3,600 a year.

The increase was carefully studied and related to other supervisory jobs in the department, Mrs. Roeder added.

Tederick moved that the matter be tabled for one week but his motion died for want of a second.

Tederick commented that a home is furnished for Golden and said that fact should be taken into consideration. Mrs. Roeder said it was considered when the increase proposal was studied.

Both Mayor Post and Tederick voted against Golden's increase.

Son Shot Father, Murder Charged

Grant Shaffer, 20, East Saxton, Pa., will be given a hearing this morning before Bedford, Pa., Justice of the Peace H. Cyril Bingham on a murder charge in the death last Thursday of his 69-year old father, Monroe Shaffer.

Pennsylvania State Police in Bedford report that young Shaffer has admitted that the fatal shooting of his father with a .22-caliber rifle followed a father-son argument. The argument and shooting occurred in the Shaffers' one-room dwelling at East Saxton.

Although the shooting happened last Thursday, Monroe Shaffer's body was not discovered until the next day, State Police said.

The younger Shaffer, who fled after the shooting was arrested early Saturday at Julian, in Pennsylvania's Centre County, some 50 miles north of East Saxton.

Four Firms Bid On Uniforms For City's Police

Four local firms submitted bids last night for supplying the Police Department with 38 patrolmen's uniforms and two uniforms for motorcycle officers.

The bids were referred to Police and Fire Commissioner John J. Long for tabulation and report. They were as follows:

Hirsh the Tailor, $71.85 each for patrolmen's uniforms and $65 each for the other two uniforms.

Metro Clothes bid $70.40 each for patrolmen's uniforms and $62.25 each for the two motorcycle uniforms.

Street Commissioner Lucile W. Roeder was authorized to advertise for bids for furnishing and application of 400 yards of asphaltic plant mix material, to be applied by machine on parts of city streets affected by flood control excavation where temporary pavement has been placed.

Council approved a motion introduced by Finance Commissioner William H. Buchholtz, chairman of the United Nations Day observance here today, to close offices at City Hall this morning for a 15-minute period to allow employes to attend a public ceremony there at 11 a. m.

Referred to City Attorney W. Earle Cobey was a letter from John M. Robb, local attorney, regarding a claim for damages estimated at $750 in connection with flood control work on behalf of Harold Clayton, who operates a used car lot on Wineow Street.

Robb's letter said negligent handling of two trucks and failure to restore poles and lights and proper grading, as well as damage to signs and the roof of the small building at the lot, were involved.

A request from the Mercantile Bureau of the Cumberland Chamber of Commerce for a donation toward the giant balloon parade to be held here November 27 was referred to the Allegany County Industrial Promotion Committee.

Payment Ordered

Payment of $30 was ordered to the Homicide Investigation Seminar fund as a tuition fee for enrollment of Detective Thomas J. See.

Bid of the State Restaurant for feeding prisoners at the City Jail was referred to Police and Fire Commissioner John J. Long with power to act. The restaurant offered to supply sandwiches at 15 cents and coffee at 10 cents.

On the recommendation of Assistant Fire Chief W. L. Lindner, permission was granted to the Esso Standard Oil Company to replace a 560-gallon underground storage tank at the Hiser Supply Company, 11 Pioneer Place, with a 1,000-gallon tank.

Mary Hammersmith estate, 114 Park Street, $48.26 for overpayment of city taxes in the name of Katherine Kerscher, North Mechanic Street.

Joseph E. Dennison, 631 North Mechanic Street, $98.60 for overpayment of 1949 city taxes.

Fire Department Promotions Are Approved, 3-2

Post, Tederick Vote Against Action

Promotions in the Fire Department, effective November 1, were approved last night by the Mayor and Council over the opposition of Mayor Thomas S. Post and Water Commissioner George H. Tederick.

Police and Fire Commissioner John J. Long said the promotions were made on the basis of a Civil Service examination held September 26.

"I was not shown a copy of the examination and my suggestion that such examinations be secured from the Fire Underwriters or another outside party experienced in composing tests of this nature was ignored," Long said in an accompanying statement.

In the final analysis, Long said, the test accounted for two-thirds of each score while seniority and recommendation of Fire Chief John E Brennan made up the other third

Long said the results were used as the basis for appointment "with the hope that the test was valid and really tested those characteristics which determine a man's capacity for officer's rank."

Motion Voted Down

Tederick moved that the appointment be tabled for one week "because of insufficient information," and this was seconded by Mayor Post. The motion was voted down by a 2 to 3 vote, however.

The mayor commented that the examinations were "unfair because of the method of rating."

There were 14 applicants for the eight positions as captain or lieutenant in the Fire Department.

Promotions are as follows:

Captains, Virgil A. Parker, Charles E. Barham, James A. Jackson and Robert R. Long; lieutenants, H. D. Davidson, Francis J. Wallace, Vincent H. Wegman and Thomas W. Lindner.

Council accepted the bid of the John C. Louis Company, Baltimore, of $2,447.06 to supply a portable air compressor for the Water Department.

By a 3 to 2 vote, council voted payment of $7,000 to Robert T. Regester, consulting engineer of Baltimore, as the first installment for preparation of preliminary plans and specifications for construction of a sewage disposal plant in Cumberland.

Voting against payment were Long and Finance Commissioner William H. Buchholtz.

Resolution Adopted

Long was not present at a council session several weeks ago at which Regester was selected as engineer for the project. At that time Buckholtz asked that the matter be tabled until a full council could be present.

A resolution was adopted authorizing City Auditor Arthur B. Gibson to place the $14,000 recently received by the city as a federal loan into a special fund to be known as the "Sewage Disposal Engineering Fund."

The loan was advanced by the Housing and Home Finance Agency, which has allowed up to $56,000 to aid in financing cost of preparing plans and specifications for the sewage disposal plant.

Also approved was payment of $250 to Dr. Carl N. Everstine, assistant director of research of the Department of Legislative Reference in Baltimore, as the final installment of the $1,250 fee for his work on preparing the new city code.

All ordinances passed since the last city code was printed in 1926 are being recodified and brought up to date.

Mayor Thomas S. Post and Finance Commissioner William H. Buchholtz said that binding work is being done and that the finished code is expected to be received here in the next week or two.

Ellamore Girl Dies When Car Hits Guard Rail

Cynthia Coffman Killed In Crash

A 21-year-old girl was killed instantly at 12:30 yesterday morning when her car skidded, struck a guard rail, and overturned while she was traveling on State Route 33 from Buckhannon, W. Va., to her home in Ellamore, Tucker County, W. Va.

The girl was identified as Miss Cynthia Coffman, according to Tucker County sources. Miss Coffman's car skidded when she attempted to stop behind a trailer-truck which stopped abruptly in front of her.

Cpl. R. C. Culp, of the Buckhannon State Police, said that Miss Coffman had been crushed by the door of the car when he arrived ten minutes after the accident occurred.

Miss Coffman was the daughter of Myron T. Coffman, Ellamore, and the late Leone Moore Coffman.

Survivers include her father, and two brothers, Joe Wade Coffman, Frostburg, and Myron T. Coffman, Jr., Ellamore.

She was a graduate of Buckhannon-Upshur High School, class of 1947, and attended Cincinnati Conservatory of Music for two years.

Wade Coffman, former chairman of the West Virginia Public Service Commission, who died in December 1949. She was also the granddaughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Moore, prominent coal operator in Parsons.

The body has been taken to a funeral home in Clarksburg, W. Va.

Getty Urges U. S. To Know The U.N.

Since 1947 this program has brought some 161 social welfare officials here from foreign countries to study specialized aspects of their work as they have been developed in this country, Getty added.

Tax Exemption Requests Are Turned Down

City Council Issues Statement On Action

Reversing the policy of a previous council, the Mayor and Council last night unanimously rejected tax exemption requests made by two local firms.

The requests had been made several weeks ago by National Jet Company and by Free State Art Plastics, Inc. National Jet was seeking its third annual renewal while the plastics firm sought its second annual exemption.

Statement Read

A statement by the council on the matter was read into the minutes. It said:

"The Mayor and City Council of Cumberland has given very careful consideration to the applications from two firms for exemption from city taxes for the current year.

"The city charter authorizes the Mayor and City Council to enter into contracts with new industries to exempt them from city taxes for a term not exceeding 10 years. It also authorizes the Mayor and City Council to exempt existing industries for one year.

"The Mayor and Council will cooperate in bringing new industries to Cumberland in any way possible and will be very happy to consider granting such industries tax exemptions as one of the inducements for them to settle here.

"In the case of existing industries, however, the Mayor and City Council does not feel that it can discriminate between local industries unless there are some exceptional circumstances which would justify the tax exemption.

"The two applications that it has do not show any special circumstances which would justify granting them exemptions from city taxes."

National Jet sought an exemption on tools and machinery. Its first exemption was granted in 1947 with the understanding that annual renewals would be applied for up to the statutory limit of 10 years.

John M. Robb, who represented the firm, pointed out that the matter had been tabled for four weeks and that he had been present at each council session during that time, prepared to present arguments on behalf of the request.

Robb said his letter of September 22 applying for the exemption stated that both he and the firm's general manager would be glad to appear before the council to present the case. They were not invited to do so, he added.

The attorney said he "took exception" to the way in which the matter was handled last night and added he had had no opportunity to show reasons why the exemption should be granted.

Time Allowed

Street Commissioner Lucile W. Roeder said the audience is given an opportunity to be heard at the close of the session, but Robb replied the matter was tabled each time.

Finance Commissioner William H. Buchholtz and Mayor Thomas S. Post remarked that time is always allowed for remarks from the audience on important motions before they go to a vote.

Police and Fire Commissioner John J. Long said the council's decision was not a quick one and that the matter had been held up for discussion in executive meetings.

The application of Free State Art Plastics, made October 2 through its president, Arthur C. Morgan, had been tabled three times. It asked tax relief for another year because "we are far from being solidly and satisfactorily established."

No spokesman for the firm appeared at the session last night.

Barter Players To Present Comedy Of Errors Tomorrow

Shakespeare's "Comedy of Errors," one of the great writer's lighter dramas, will be presented tomorrow at 8:15 p. m. in Allegany High School auditorium by the Barter Theater Players, sponsored by the Cumberland Junior Association of Commerce.

K. O. Nelson, chairman of the Barter program for the Jaycees, said last night tickets have been placed on sale at the S. T. Little Jewelry Company Store, Baltimore Street, and also will be available at the box office.

The play, "Comedy of Errors," was written about 1580 in Stratford, England, while William Shakespeare was teaching school.

The chief source of the "Comedy of Errors" was Plautus's Menaechim (The Twins). But this Latin comedy had only one set of brothers. Shakespeare added another pair; making twin servants, for twin masters. He also added other characters, and devised other complications for the plot. In fact, the plot is a somewhat dizzy and entagled affair. But he romps through the difficulties he had created, and ties them up neatly in the end.

The "Comedy of Errors," to a certain extent, is a farce but Shakespeare wanted it to be more than that. So he introduced a theme of danger, which contrasted with a theme of laughable confusion; and he also developed a love story. These elements make the play something more than mere fun.

In short, it is a comedy mainly about people whom the audience could respect, in which the serious and the ridiculous were set side by side, and by contrast emphasized each other.

War Is Declared On Young Vandals Busy In Mt. Savage

War against pre-Halloween vandalism in the community of Mt. Savage was declared last night by Constable-at-Large Charles Albright and Justice of the Peace Aloysius Monahan, who contend that pranksters have been busy there for the past several weeks.

Vandalism in Mt. Savage this year has been much more intensive than in other recent Halloween seasons, Albright disclosed.

Several gangs of boys, ranging in age between 10 and 16 years, reportedly have been active in Mt. Savage. They have removed gates and fencing and have stolen cabbage from many vegetable gardens. This cabbage has been tossed on porches in the community.

Albright and Monahan promise that all young vandals who are caught in the one-week period between now and Halloween will be taken into Allegany County Juvenile Court and "prosecuted to the fullest extent of the law."

The constable, who plans to patrol Mt. Savage during this pre-Halloween period, says that no mercy will be shown. Cooperation of all Mt. Savage residents in reporting to him the names of vandals was asked by Albright.

Apparently, some of the youngsters have repented, Albright believes. At any rate two gates that had been removed from their hinges were returned Sunday. One iron gate, which had been placed across an alley, resulted in injury to a woman when she fell over it.

Pay Adjustments Made For Fire, Police Officers

Council Increases Other Salaries

Salary adjustments on a "work differential" basis for officers of the Police and Fire Departments were approved last night by the Mayor and Council by a 4 to 1 vote, with Mayor Thomas S. Post dissenting.

Also approved were raises for three employes at City Hall, over the opposition of Mayor Post and Water Commissioner George H. Tederick.

Those employes are City Clerk Wallace G. Ullery, from $268 to $300 monthly; Miss Mary E. Clay, secretary to the mayor, from $203 to $228; and Miss Nell Cozad, assistant to the city auditor, from $203 to $220.

The order was introduced by Finance Commissioner William H. Buchholtz since all three employes are under the jurisdiction of the Finance Department.

Mayor Post said his opposition did not reflect on the ability of the three employes but he added he could not support the action because "everyone should have adjustments."

Water Commissioner George H. Tederick said two or three employes should not be singled out for raises, but Street Commissioner Lucile W. Roeder said job analysis studies were taken into account.

Ends Discussion

Buchholtz ended the discussion by stating "It's time we started paying people for what they know and do and not for who they know." He voted an emphatic "Aye!" when the matter went to a vote.

Differential pay authorized for the Fire Department at a total cost of $2,280 per year is retroactive to July 1. It is as follows:

Fire chief, monthly salary increased from $286 to $296; assistant fire chiefs, from $256 to $266; captains, from $226 to $241; lieutenants, from $226 to $236; and chauffeurs, $220 to $225.

Differential pay for the Police Department is also retroactive to July 1 and will amount to a total cost of $720 a year. Changes are as follows:

Police chief, from $298 to $310 monthly; assistant chief, $262 to $272.40; and lieutenants, $238 to $250.

Long said the changes would make the police chief's salary equal to that of the Hagerstown chief of police. He added that the Fire Department differential has been needed "for a long while" to give men an incentive for advancement.

Golden Salary Raised

Also increased was the salary of Robert R. Golden, custodian at Constitution Park, from $151 monthly to $180, effective November 1.

Mrs. Roeder, who introduced the order, said the work is a seven-day a week job and added Golden is on call for night duty when needed. The "going rate" for such positions, she said, is $3,600 a year.

The increase was carefully studied and related to other supervisory jobs in the department, Mrs. Roeder added.

Tederick moved that the matter be tabled for one week but his motion died for want of a second.

Tederick commented that a home is furnished for Golden and said that fact should be taken into consideration. Mrs. Roeder said it was considered when the increase proposal was studied.

Both Mayor Post and Tederick voted against Golden's increase.

Fire Department Promotions Are Approved, 3-2

Post, Tederick Vote Against Action

Promotions in the Fire Department, effective November 1, were approved last night by the Mayor and Council over the opposition of Mayor Thomas S. Post and Water Commissioner George H. Tederick.

Police and Fire Commissioner John J. Long said the promotions were made on the basis of a Civil Service examination held September 26.

"I was not shown a copy of the examination and my suggestion that such examinations be secured from the Fire Underwriters or another outside party experienced in composing tests of this nature was ignored," Long said in an accompanying statement.

In the final analysis, Long said, the test accounted for two-thirds of each score while seniority and recommendation of Fire Chief John E. Brennan made up the other third.

Long said the results were used as the basis for appointment "with the hope that the test was valid and really tested those characteristics which determine a man's capacity for officer's rank."

Motion Voted Down

Tederick moved that the appointment be tabled for one week "because of insufficient information," and this was seconded by Mayor Post. The motion was voted down by a 2 to 3 vote, however.

The mayor commented that the examinations were "unfair because of the method of rating."

There were 14 applicants for the eight positions as captain or lieutenant in the Fire Department.

Promotions are as follows:

Captains, Virgil A. Parker, Charles E. Barham, James A. Jackson and Robert R. Long; lieutenants, H. D. Davidson, Francis J. Wallace, Vincent H. Wegman and Thomas W. Lindner.

Council accepted the bid of the John C. Louis Company, Baltimore, of $2,447.06 to supply a portable air compressor for the Water Department.

By a 3 to 2 vote, council voted payment of $7,000 to Robert T. Regester, consulting engineer of Baltimore, as the first installment for preparation of preliminary plans and specifications for construction of a sewage disposal plant in Cumberland.

Voting against payment were Long and Finance Commissioner William H. Buchholtz.

Resolution Adopted

Long was not present at a council session several weeks ago at which Regester was selected as engineer for the project. At that time Buckholtz asked that the matter be tabled until a full council could be present.

A resolution was adopted authorizing City Auditor Arthur B. Gibson to place the $14,000 recently received by the city as a federal loan into a special fund to be known as the "Sewage Disposal Engineering Fund."

The loan was advanced by the Housing and Home Finance Agency, which has allowed up to $56,000 to aid in financing cost of preparing plans and specifications for the sewage disposal plant.

Also approved was payment of $250 to Dr. Carl N. Everstine, assistant director of research of the Department of Legislative Reference in Baltimore, as the final installment of the $1,250 fee for his work on preparing the new city code.

All ordinances passed since the last city code was printed in 1926 are being recodified and brought up to date.

Mayor Thomas S. Post and Finance Commissioner William H. Buchholtz said that binding work is being done and that the finished code is expected to be received here in the next week or two.

The girl was identified as Miss Cynthia Coffman, according to Tucker County sources. Miss Coffman's car skidded when she attempted to stop behind a trailer-truck which stopped abruptly in front of her.

Cpl. R. C. Culp, of the Buckhannon State Police, said that Miss Coffman had been crushed by the door of the car when he arrived ten minutes after the accident occurred.

Miss Coffman was the daughter of Myron T. Coffman, Ellamore, and the late Leone Moore Coffman.

Tax Exemption Requests Are Turned Down

City Council Issues Statement On Action

Reversing the policy of a previous council, the Mayor and Council last night unanimously rejected tax exemption requests made by two local firms.

The requests had been made several weeks ago by National Jet Company and by Free State Art Plastics, Inc. National Jet was seeking its third annual renewal while the plastics firm sought its second annual exemption.

Statement Read

A statement by the council on the matter was read into the minutes. It said:

"The Mayor and City Council of Cumberland has given very careful consideration to the applications from two firms for exemption from city taxes for the current year.

"The city charter authorizes the Mayor and City Council to enter into contracts with new industries to exempt them from city taxes for a term not exceeding 10 years. It also authorizes the Mayor and City Council to exempt existing industries for one year.

"The Mayor and Council will cooperate in bringing new industries to Cumberland in any way possible and will be very happy to consider granting such industries tax exemptions as one of the inducements for them to settle here.

"In the case of existing industries, however, the Mayor and City Council does not feel that it can discriminate between local industries unless there are some exceptional circumstances which would justify the tax exemption.

"The two applications that it has do not show any special circumstances which would justify granting them exemptions from city taxes."

National Jet sought an exemption on tools and machinery. Its first exemption was granted in 1947 with the understanding that annual renewals would be applied for up to the statutory limit of 10 years.

John M. Robb, who represented the firm, pointed out that the matter had been tabled for four weeks and that he had been present at each council session during that time, prepared to present arguments on behalf of the request.

Robb said his letter of September 22 applying for the exemption stated that both he and the firm's general manager would be glad to appear before the council to present the case. They were not invited to do so, he added.

The attorney said he "took exception" to the way in which the matter was handled last night and added he had had no opportunity to show reasons why the exemption should be granted.

Time Allowed

Street Commissioner Lucile W. Roeder said the audience is given an opportunity to be heard at the close of the session, but Robb replied the matter was tabled each time.

Finance Commissioner William H. Buchholtz and Mayor Thomas S. Post remarked that time is always allowed for remarks from the audience on important motions before they go to a vote.

Police and Fire Commissioner John J. Long said the council's decision was not a quick one and that the matter had been held up for discussion in executive meetings.

The application of Free State Art Plastics, made October 2 through its president, Arthur C. Morgan, had been tabled three times. It asked tax relief for another year because "we are far from being solidly and satisfactorily established."

Barter Players To Present Comedy Of Errors Tomorrow

Shakespeare's "Comedy of Errors," one of the great writer's lighter dramas, will be presented tomorrow at 8:15 p. m. in Allegany High School auditorium by the Barter Theater Players, sponsored by the Cumberland Junior Association of Commerce.

K. O. Nelson, chairman of the Barter program for the Jaycees, said last night tickets have been placed on sale at the S. T. Little Jewelry Company Store, Baltimore Street, and also will be available at the box office.

The play, "Comedy of Errors," was written about 1580 in Stratford, England, while William Shakespeare was teaching school.

The chief source of the "Comedy of Errors" was Plautus's Menaechim (The Twins). But this Latin comedy had only one set of brothers. Shakespeare added another pair; making twin servants, for twin masters. He also added other characters, and devised other complications for the plot. In fact, the plot is a somewhat dizzy and entagled affair. But he romps through the difficulties he had created, and ties them up neatly in the end.

The "Comedy of Errors," to a certain extent, is a farce but Shakespeare wanted it to be more than that. So he introduced a theme of danger, which contrasted with a theme of laughable confusion; and he also developed a love story. These elements make the play something more than mere fun.

In short, it is a comedy mainly about people whom the audience could respect, in which the serious and the ridiculous were set side by side, and by contrast emphasized each other.

War Is Declared On Young Vandals Busy In Mt. Savage

War against pre-Halloween vandalism in the community of Mt. Savage was declared last night by Constable-at-Large Charles Albright and Justice of the Peace Aloysius Monahan, who contend that pranksters have been busy there for the past several weeks.

Vandalism in Mt. Savage this year has been much more intensive than in other recent Halloween seasons, Albright disclosed.

Several gangs of boys, ranging in age between 10 and 16 years, reportedly have been active in Mt. Savage. They have removed gates and fencing and have stolen cabbage from many vegetable gardens. This cabbage has been tossed on porches in the community.

Albright and Monahan promise that all young vandals who are caught in the one-week period between now and Halloween will be taken into Allegany County Juvenile Court and "prosecuted to the fullest extent of the law."

The constable, who plans to patrol Mt. Savage during this pre-Halloween period, says that no mercy will be shown. Cooperation of all Mt. Savage residents in reporting to him the names of vandals was asked by Albright.

Apparently, some of the youngsters have repented, Albright believes. At any rate two gates that had been removed from their hinges were returned Sunday. One iron gate, which had been placed across an alley, resulted in injury to a woman when she fell over it.
